I. Policy Statement

This RealPage Philippines Flexible Work Policy is a supplement to the RealPage Global Flexible Work Policy to ensure that RealPage (Philippines), Inc. (“Company”) defines and sets out the local parameters to implement in the Philippines the global hybrid and remote working policy discretion.

II. Application

This Policy applies to all employees of RealPage (Philippines), Inc. without regard to position, tenure, and status of employment.

III. Hybrid and Remote Work

1. An employee who works at home or at an alternative location, whether as part of (a) hybrid working or (b) as a fully remote employee, has the following responsibilities:

- a. The employee must work in a safe and secure location, generally his/her residence, that will not expose his/her person or the company property and information to any harm or danger.
- b. The employee must ensure that the chosen location for remote work is equipped with appropriate, stable, usable, and secure internet connection. The employee must comply with the appropriate internet speed (i.e., mbps) required by their respective business units or functions and with reliable back-up provisions for power, internet connection, and other systems and equipment enablement.
- c. It is the employee's responsibility to ensure that their home or alternative work location is conducive to productive work. This includes maintaining a quiet environment free from disruptive background noise such as but not limited to machineries, vehicles, animals, or other sources that may interfere with virtual meetings, calls, or focused work. The company reserves the right to reassess the remote work arrangement if the work environment is found to be consistently disruptive or unsuitable for professional duties.
- d. It remains the duty of the employee while in a remote working location to continuously comply with, and to be bound by, all the Company policies, procedures, rules, and regulations such as those pertaining to information security, data privacy, confidentiality, and other matters pertaining to the performance and delivery of work.
- e. The employee must immediately inform, at the earliest opportunity, his/her immediate supervisor regarding any unstable or loss of internet connection or any event that diminishes or interrupts his/her capability to perform or deliver any work or to communicate with any leaders or co-employees, clients or customers; and thereafter, should such situation persist, for the employee to immediately report in the office or a suitable alternative location in a manner that will prevent any further work interruption or disturbance. Unproductive hours/days may be compensated only when appropriate paid time off were used, following the process of request and approval for utilizing accrued PTO credits (see RealPage Philippines Paid Time Off Policy). The failure by the employee to make this immediate notification or to do the immediate work onsite as a mode to recover from the unproductive time or work disruption shall be deemed as deviation from standard operating procedure which are subject to proper investigation and due process.
- f. All costs arising from or connected to remote working shall be the responsibility of the employee.

2. Any opportunity given by the Company to render Hybrid or Remote Work in this or in other policies is a privilege that the Company may alter or completely revoke, and it is not a right. As such, the employee must responsibly exercise the privilege by ensuring that his/her Remote Work situation or environment is fully compatible with the requirements of the business.

An employee who, while in a remote work, fails to maintain the desired working environment to support the business (e.g., does not have a reliable internet service/connection or power, noise that is disruptive in the conduct of work, or does not have a quiet professional environment, etc.) must immediately report for work in the office or alternative suitable location for the rest of his/her shift and in his/her subsequent scheduled shifts until he/she could sufficiently prove that he/she has restored his/her remote working condition in a manner that is deemed suitable to support the business.

3. Employees who cannot be in the office or suitable alternative location within two (2) hours from the work interruption shall be marked as absent, unless the leader and the HR Department has determined that half-day work credit is justified. The employee who was marked as absent must show proof that the work interruption was beyond his/her control and/or not anticipated; otherwise, he/she will also be liable for unauthorized absence.

4. Subject to validation process as indicated in Annex A of this policy, employees whose address are far from RealPage offices prior to June 10, 2025 on UKG. For the avoidance of doubt, “far” refers to cities or municipalities that are:

i. Outside Greater Metro Manila or at the outskirts Greater Metro Manila. (See Annex C for the list.)

ii. Outside of Metro Cebu or at the outskirts Greater Metro Cebu. (See Annex C for the list.)

Employees applying for remote work will be assessed based on business needs and role requirements, such as the level of collaboration, need for onsite supervision, and performance or productivity standards. The employee’s declared address and signed Commitment Form will also undergo strict validation (see Annex A for details). All criteria must be met for approval, and management’s decision is final.

While relocating is a right of an employee, doing so does not grant eligibility for full remote work.

5. All other employees who do not qualify for Fully Remote Work as stated in III.4 above shall render Hybrid Work unless this policy and/or any other official instructions provide otherwise.

6. All hybrid employees are encouraged to reside within a reasonable commuting distance of their assigned RealPage office location. This is to help ensure that their time and energy are focused on meaningful work, rather than being depleted by long or strenuous commutes. To this end, candidates considered for roles in any of the offices of the company shall be asked to declare their addresses as part of the application process.

7. All Hybrid Work setup envisioned above is limited by the following parameters:

- a. Employees may be asked to report in their respective assigned office locations for two (2) to eight (8) days within a month depending on the need of their respective departments, groups, team, business units or functions or their company roles and positions. The frequency and/or specific days of Remote Work shall be decided by the HR Head and the Managing Director in consultation with the respective heads of the concerned departments, groups, team, business units or functions. The frequency of “two (2) to eight (8) days” within a month to do in-office work is an indicative period or frequency based on current business needs, and that the Company hereby reserves the right to modify the same or to add more days.
- b. A newly-hired employee shall, during the Probationary Period of their employment and unless otherwise specified by leaders’ instructions or on the employment contract, be on Hybrid Work setup with preference for more work-in-office days, considering the need of the employee to undergo training, to familiarize themselves with the workplace, the business and integration with their teams, as well as to provide an environment for proper assessment and evaluation in line with the purposes of probationary employment.

8. To give employees flexibility where absolutely needed, the Company offers up to six (6) In-Office Exception days per calendar year. The employee must apply for remote work a week prior to the date of intended use, except where the employee can provide justifiable and/or emergency circumstances which may warrant its immediate application; provided, that the manager has the prerogative to approve or reject such request based on the merit of each application, taking into consideration business exigencies and the need to satisfy business requirements relative to cause submitted for immediate use of In-Office Exception Credits. See the process for application and approval of InOffice Exception credits in Annex B.

9. Employees are entitled to one complimentary meal on their designated inoffice days. This meal is provided at the company’s discretion and is not considered a contractual right or employee benefit. The company reserves the right to modify or discontinue this offering at any time without prior notice.

10. The Company reserves the right to order an employee to report FULLY IN THE OFFICE on scheduled working days, for a reasonable period of time, based on, but not limited to, the following reasons: training, official events, employee monitoring, performance improvement, other official needs, or when serious considerations make it appear that in-office days may be more productive and beneficial to the employee and/or the company. For example:

- a. If an employee is eligible for and signs up for a training program that is only available in-person on-site, the employee shall be required to come to the office to avail of such training. This shall be the same arrangement for an employee on full remote work arrangement.
- b. If an employee is identified as needing additional in-person supervision, coaching, or support to address performance challenges and meet individual or team objectives, they may be required to report to the office on days beyond their regular in-office schedule.

11. The company reserves the right to a shift in scheduling and/or setup paradigm relative to office and/or remote work of employees as part of Company's prerogatives under law and regulation. This policy does not in any way create, conceptualize, nor accrue in favor of any employee a right to entitlement, demand, claim, or invocation to any working setup, including remote work, hybrid work, office work, or any other working arrangement or setup.

An employee may only avail of the Remote Work Setup within this policy with Remote Work done in the Philippines. Except for company-arranged business travels, when an employee intends to travel abroad, he/she must use leave credits, and should not render remote work. Reasonable incidental work during personal travels may be allowed.

IV. Repeal of Previous Policies

Any other Company policy, procedure, rule, or practice which is inconsistent with this policy is hereby repealed and superseded by this policy.

ANNEX A: Full Remote Work Arrangement: Process Flow

Step 1: System-Based Eligibility Identification

HR reviews employee records to identify those whose current address in the company's system is in a place that requires air or sea travel to reach the office prior to the effectivity date of this policy.

Step 2: BU/Function Head Recommendation and Immediate Manager Validation

2.1. Employee's BU or Function Head provides a written recommendation.

Recommendation must confirm:

- Suitability of the role for remote work
- Employee's reliability and independence
- Employee's performance level is "Meeting Expectations"

2.2. Employee's immediate manager provides validation that the address declared by the employee is true and correct.

Step 3: Notify employees who are eligible and recommended by their BU for remote work arrangement.

Eligible employees are notified that they are eligible to apply for full remote work, as well as the instructions and requirements for application.

Step 4: Employee Expression of Interest

Eligible employee submits a request to apply for full remote work via the designated HR platform.

Employee submits two (2) valid proofs of address with the employee's legal name in it, such as:

- a recent proof of billing
- valid government ID
- barangay certificate
- leasing/rental agreement

The employee is also required to submit a notarized Commitment Form upon application for remote work.

The company reserves the right to seek for other equivalent and/or supporting documents.

Step 5: Immediate Manager Validation

Employee's immediate manager provides validation that the address declared by the employee is true and correct.

Step 6: Documentation Verification

The HRBP of the employee validates the documents submitted. They validate the consistency of the address on official company records and that indicated in the proof of address and notarized commitment form, and checks the authenticity of the documents received.

Any invalid documents and/or inconsistency may result to rejection of the application.

The system sends an update to the employee on the status of the application. It informs the employee if it is in progress for final approval or denied as evidence provided do not meet requirements.

Step 7: Final Review and Decision

HR Head and Senior Managing Director jointly review:

- Eligibility criteria
- Documentation
- Performance rating
- BU/Function Head recommendation

If approved → HR issues a Full Remote Work Agreement

If declined → HR communicates the reason to the employee

Step 8: Agreement and Onboarding

Employee is informed by HR regarding the result of the application for remote work and copies in the immediate manager of the employee in the said notice.

HR updates the employee's work arrangement in the system

IT and Facilities teams are notified for any support needs

ANNEX B: In-Office Exception Process Flow

Step 1: Allotment of In-Office Exception Days

- Each employee is allotted 6 In-Office Exception (IOE) days per calendar year, distributed pro-rata based on their date of joining.
- Unconsumed WIO credit does not carry-over the following year. All employees reset to the total days offered per year on January 01 yearly.
- These days are front-loaded and made available in the system.

Step 2: Employee Submits IOE Request

- Employee logs into the system and applies for the In-Office Exception prior to the intended date of use.
- Employee specifies the date(s) and reason for the request.

Step 3: Manager Review and Approval

- The employee's manager receives a notification of the request.
- Manager reviews the request and approves or declines it via the system.

Step 4: Confirmation and Logging

- Once approved, the IOE day is deducted from the employee's available balance.
- The employee receives a confirmation notification.
