Welcome to RealPage

Welcome to RealPage and thank you for joining the team!

We know there are many places where you can grow your career, and we're grateful you've chosen to invest your talent and energy here.

Our mission is to help customers create vibrant communities with great living experiences, while supporting residents in achieving financial wellness and lasting success. What makes this mission possible is our team.

We take pride in excellence, ownership, character, and teamwork. These values shape our culture and how we show up for each other and our customers every day.

As you get started, please know you're not doing this alone. The Employee Handbook is a helpful reference for policies and employment information. Take time to review it and connect with your manager or Human Resources Business Partner if questions come up. The latest version is always available on the RealPage Global Portal and may change over time.

We're excited to have you here. Together, we'll continue to lead responsibly and innovate boldly to strengthen the rental housing market for everyone we serve.

Thank you for joining our team — we can't wait to be a part of your success!

Dirk Wakeham
Chief Executive Officer

Introduction

To get the most from this handbook, keep the following in mind: Other than the Dispute Resolution Policy, which sets forth the manner in which you and the Company agree to address workplace issues, it contains only general information and guidelines and is not intended to be comprehensive or to address all the possible applications of, or exceptions to, the general policies and procedures described. For that reason, if you have any questions concerning eligibility for a particular benefit or the applicability of a policy or practice, you should direct your specific questions to Human Resources.

Except for the Dispute Resolution Policy, which is a binding contract between you and the Company, nothing in this handbook is intended to constitute a guarantee of employment or contract for employment (express or implied) for any specified period of time. Either RealPage or the employee may end this relationship at any time with or without cause, notice, or reason. No manager, supervisor, or representative other than RealPage's chief executive officer or the chief financial officer has the authority to enter into any written agreement guaranteeing you employment for any specific period of time or to make any written or oral promises, agreements, or commitments contrary to this policy. Further, any employment agreement entered into by the chief executive officer or chief financial officer will not be enforceable unless it is in writing.

The procedures, practices, policies and benefits described here may be modified or discontinued from time to time. RealPage will adhere to these policies except to the extent that they conflict with federal, state or local laws. Applicable laws will take precedence in these cases.

If an employee is accused of violating any provision of the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics, any other rules of conduct, or the Employee Handbook, RealPage will take the appropriate corrective action, up to and including termination based on the facts of the situation.

You may also be subject to policies and rules other than those described in this handbook to meet business requirements. Official policy documents give detailed descriptions of some subjects described in this handbook.

Employee Handbook Acknowledgment and Receipt

I have received and reviewed my copy of the Employee Handbook.

The Employee Handbook describes important information about RealPage, including its Dispute Resolution Policy (hereafter, the “DRP”), and I understand that I should consult with my manager or a Human Resources representative regarding any questions not answered in the handbook.

This handbook and the policies and procedures contained herein supersede any inconsistent prior practices, oral or written representations, or statements regarding the terms and conditions of my employment with RealPage. By distributing this handbook, the Company expressly revokes any and all previous policies and procedures that are inconsistent with those contained herein. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing herein shall supersede or alter the obligations owed by an employee to Company under any agreements or documents executed for the Company’s benefit at the commencement of or during an employee’s employment with the Company (including, without limitation, any confidentiality, nondisclosure, or proprietary information agreements).

I understand that except for my employment-at-will status, any and all policies and practices may be changed at any time by RealPage, and the Company reserves the right to change my hours, wages, and working conditions at anytime. I understand that revised information may supersede, modify or eliminate existing policies. By signing below, I acknowledge that I have received the handbook, and I understand that it is my responsibility to read and comply with the policies contained in this handbook and any revisions made to it. In addition, I hereby consent to any search of my personal belongings and electronic devices as necessary for RealPage to monitor compliance with its security policies and agree to return all Company equipment and materials when my employment ends.

I acknowledge, understand and agree that I have been able to read and review the DRP in this handbook, and that if any employment-related disputes now exist or arise in the future, RealPage and I will both be bound by the terms of the DRP, under which we each waive our rights to have any “Covered Disputes” (as defined therein) heard or decided through any type of judge or jury trials, administrative hearings or through any type of action, and agree that any Covered Disputes can only be resolved through mandatory, binding individual arbitration. I understand that I am bound by the DRP by virtue of my receipt of this handbook unless I otherwise elect not to be bound by the DRP by following the opt-out procedures in the DRP within 30 days of my initial receipt of the DRP.

I have entered into my employment relationship with RealPage voluntarily and acknowledge that there is no specified length of employment.

I UNDERSTAND AND AGREE THAT EXCEPT FOR THE DRP, WHICH CONSTITUTES A BINDING CONTRACT BETWEEN ME AND REALPAGE, NOTHING IN THE EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK CREATES, OR IS INTENDED TO CREATE, A CONTRACT OR PROMISE OR REPRESENTATION OF CONTINUED EMPLOYMENT, EITHER EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, AND THAT EMPLOYMENT AT REALPAGE IS AT-WILL, WHICH MEANS THAT IT MAY BE TERMINATED AT ANY TIME, FOR ANY REASON OR NO REASON BY EITHER REALPAGE OR ME. I UNDERSTAND AND AGREE THAT EMPLOYMENT AND COMPENSATION MAY BE TERMINATED WITH OR WITHOUT CAUSE AND WITH OR WITHOUT NOTICE AT ANY TIME BY REALPAGE OR ME.

RealPage Purpose Statement and Core Values

A strong corporate culture is built on shared purpose and values and is essential to our long-term success. Our Purpose Statement is why we exist and what we do. At RealPage we:

Inspire Amazing Experiences. Deliver Exceptional Value.

Inspire is a powerful word that highlights the role we and our solutions play in our ecosystem. We Inspire Amazing Experiences for our customers and their employees, as well as prospects and residents. We Deliver Exceptional Value for everyone who interacts with and relies on our solutions.

We will succeed at achieving our purpose through our Core Values of Excellence, Character, Ownership and Teamwork:

EXCELLENCE

Commit to Excellence

1. Focus on customer success.
2. Drive innovation and thought leadership.
3. Operate with a passion for quality.

OWNERSHIP

Own It

1. Hold ourselves and one another accountable.
2. Follow through on commitments.
3. Lead, drive and own results.

CHARACTER

Lead with Character

1. Treat everyone with respect and dignity.
2. Foster a diverse and inclusive environment.
3. Serve and strengthen our communities.
4. Live with and demand impeccable integrity.

TEAMWORK

Win Together

1. Align on common goals to achieve shared success.
2. Communicate with transparency and authenticity.
3. Collaborate and execute as one global team.
4. Celebrate the joy in the journey.

Why are core values important?

Core values are the building blocks of organizational culture, and they provide a platform for each of us as employees to anchor to that Company culture.

Core values help shape the Company culture in everything we do, and they provide a common language across the organization. They define how we show up to one another internally, and how we want to be understood externally.

Core values help guide our decision making, inform our actions and emphasize what is important to the business as the organization continues to evolve and improve.

It takes each and every one of us to lean in and live these values for them to become embedded into the culture here at RealPage.

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY & CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT/ETHICS

Introduction

This Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (“Code”) of RealPage Parent, LP, RealPage, Inc., and their respective subsidiaries (collectively, the “Company”) is designed to deter wrongdoing and to promote: honest and ethical conduct, including the ethical handling of actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships; full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable information in financial statements, regulatory filings and public communications; compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations; the prompt internal reporting of violations of this Code; and accountability for adherence to this Code. This Code applies to all directors, officers and employees of the Company. In addition, we strive to choose agents, partners and other parties with whom to conduct business who adhere to high ethical standards like this Code. This Code should help guide your conduct in the course of our business. However, many of the principles described in this Code are general in nature, and this Code does not cover every situation that may arise. Use common sense and good judgment in applying this Code. If you have any questions about applying this Code, it is your responsibility to seek guidance.

This Code is not the exclusive source of guidance and information regarding the conduct of our business. You should consult applicable policies and procedures in specific areas as they apply. This Code is intended to supplement, not replace, the employee handbook and the other policies and procedures of the Company. This Code amends and restates the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics that was approved by the Board of Directors of RealPage, Inc., on Feb. 26, 2010. We are committed to continuously reviewing and updating our policies and procedures. The Company, therefore, reserves the right to amend, alter or terminate this Code at any time and for any reason, subject to applicable law.

Your responsibilities

You are expected to read and understand this Code. You must uphold these standards in day-to-day activities and comply with all applicable policies and procedures in this Code. Part of your job and ethical responsibility is to help enforce this Code. You should be alert to possible violations and promptly report, anonymously if desired, violations or suspected violations of this Code. Please refer to “Procedural Matters—Reporting Violations” for more information. You must cooperate with investigations into possible Code violations and be truthful and forthcoming in the course of these investigations. Reprisals, threats, retribution or retaliation against any person who has in good faith reported a violation or a suspected violation of law, this Code, or other Company policies, or against any person who is assisting in good faith in any investigation or process with respect to such a violation, is prohibited.

In trying to determine whether any given action is appropriate, keep these steps in mind:

- Obtain all relevant facts
- Assess the responsibilities and roles of those involved
- Using your judgment and common sense, evaluate whether the action seems unethical or improper
- Seek guidance

If you are unsure about any situation or any provision of this Code, you should discuss the matter with your manager or a representative in the Legal or Human Resources Department.

General Standards of Conduct

Overview

Honest and ethical conduct is critical to our business. All directors, officers and employees of the Company have a duty to comply with applicable law and to act in an honest and ethical manner.

Compliance with law

You are responsible for complying with all laws, rules, regulations and regulatory orders applicable to the conduct of our business. If you are located or engaging in business outside of the United States, you must comply with laws, rules, regulations and regulatory orders of the United States, including the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and U.S. export rules and regulations, in addition to the applicable laws of other jurisdictions. If a local custom or law differs from this Code, you should consult with the Legal Department for guidance and comply with applicable law. If compliance with this Code should ever conflict with law, you must comply with the law. You should undertake to acquire knowledge of the legal requirements relating to your duties sufficient to enable you to recognize potential dangers and to know when to seek advice from managers or other appropriate personnel. Violations of laws, rules, regulations and orders may subject you to individual criminal or civil liability, in addition to discipline by the Company. Violations may also subject the Company to civil or criminal liability or the loss of business.

No discrimination or harassment

The Company is committed to providing a work environment that is free of discrimination and harassment. The Company is an equal opportunity employer and makes employment decisions on the basis of merit and business needs. In addition, the Company strictly prohibits harassment of any kind, including harassment on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, national origin, veteran or disability status, or any other characteristics protected under federal or state law or local ordinance.

Health and safety

You are responsible for using good judgment to help ensure a safe and healthy workplace for all employees.

Avoiding Conflicts of Interests

Overview

Your decisions and actions in the course of your employment with the Company should be based on the best interests of the Company, and not based on personal relationships or benefits. You should seek to avoid situations where your personal activities and relationships conflict with the interests of the Company, except as approved by the Board of Managers of RealPage Parent, LP, or the Board of Directors of RealPage, Inc. (as applicable, the “Board”) or an executive to whom such authority has been delegated by the Board. This includes situations where you may have an indirect conflict through, for example, a significant other or a relative or other persons or entities with which you have a business, social, familial, personal or other relationship. A conflict may also arise when you take actions or have interests that make it difficult for you to perform your work for the Company objectively and effectively. You should seek guidance from the Legal Department if you have any questions as to whether an interest in a transaction constitutes a conflict of interest. There are a variety of situations in which a conflict of interest may arise. While it could be impractical to attempt to list all possible situations, some common types of conflicts are discussed below.

Outside employment and directorships

Unless you are a non-employee director of the Company, you may not perform services as a director, employee, agent or contractor for a competitor, customer, supplier or any other entity that has a business relationship with the Company without prior approval from the Company.

Financial interests in other companies

Certain financial interests — including an indirect interest through, for example, a relative or significant other — in other organizations could create a conflict of interest with the Company. You should be particularly sensitive to financial interests in competitors, suppliers, customers, distributors and strategic partners. You must seek prior approval by contacting the Legal Department if you are considering a financial interest that may create a conflict of interest.

Transactions with the Company

If you have a significant financial interest in a proposed transaction involving the Company — including an indirect interest through, for example, a relative or significant other or a business entity — you must seek prior approval for such interest from the Company by contacting the Legal Department. Any dealings with a related party must be conducted in such a way that no preferential treatment is given to that business.

Corporate opportunities

You may not directly or indirectly exploit for personal gain any opportunities that are discovered through the use of corporate property, information or position unless the opportunity is disclosed fully in writing to the Board or its designated committee and the Board or its designated committee declines to pursue the opportunity.

Loans by the Company

Loans from the Company to directors, officers and employees could create a conflict of interest and must be approved in advance by the Board or its designed committee.

Improper benefits

You may not receive any improper benefit as a result of your position with the Company.

Election or appointment to public office

You may serve in an elected or appointed public office provided that the position does not create or appear to create a conflict of interest.

Guidance and approvals

Evaluating whether a conflict of interest exists, or may appear to exist, requires the consideration of many factors. We encourage you to seek guidance and approval in any case where you have any questions or doubts. The Company may at any time rescind prior approvals to avoid a conflict of interest, or the appearance of a conflict of interest, for any reason deemed to be in the best interest of the Company. Please direct your questions to the Chief Legal Officer or another member of the Legal Department.

Public Communications

Financial statements, regulatory filings and public communications

The Company generates financial statements that are relied upon by various third parties, including investors and creditors. In addition, the Company files reports and other documents with regulatory authorities, and from time to time makes public communications, such as issuing press releases. Depending upon your position with the Company, you may be called upon to provide information to help assure that the Company's financial statements, regulatory filings and public communications are complete, fair, accurate and understandable. You are expected to use all reasonable efforts to provide complete, accurate, objective, relevant, timely and understandable answers to inquiries related to these statements and filings.

If you believe that any financial statement, regulatory filing or public communication is materially misleading, it is your responsibility to bring this information to the attention of the Legal Department. If you believe that questionable accounting or auditing conduct or practices have occurred or are occurring, you should notify the Chief Financial Officer, Chief Legal Officer or the Audit Committee of the Board.

Communication procedures

You may not communicate externally on behalf of the Company unless you are authorized to do so. The Company has established specific policies regarding who may communicate information to the public, the press and other stakeholders on behalf of the Company. Our Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer and their authorized designees are our official spokespeople for financial matters. Our Chief Executive Officer and corporate communications personnel, and their authorized designees, are our official spokespeople for public comment, press, marketing, technical and other such information.

You should refer all calls or other inquiries from the press or others to the Senior Vice President of Communications, who will ensure that the inquiry is directed to the appropriate persons within the Company.

All communications made to public audiences on behalf of the Company, including formal communications and presentations made to creditors, investors, customers or the press, require prior approval of the Chief Financial Officer and the Chief Legal Officer and Senior Vice President of Communications.

Financial Reporting

Overview

We follow strict accounting principles and standards to report financial information accurately and completely in accordance with these principles and standards, and we have appropriate internal controls and procedures to ensure that our accounting and financial reporting complies with the law and applicable governance principles. The integrity of our financial transactions and records is critical to the operation of our business, and is a key factor in maintaining the confidence and trust of our employees and other stakeholders.

Compliance with rules, controls and procedures

It is important that all transactions are properly recorded, classified and summarized in our financial statements, books and records in accordance with our policies, controls and procedures, as well as all generally accepted accounting principles, standards, laws, rules and regulations for accounting and financial reporting. If you have responsibility for or any involvement in financial reporting or accounting, you should have an appropriate understanding of, and you should seek in good faith to adhere to, relevant accounting and financial reporting principles, standards, laws, rules and regulations and the Company's financial and accounting policies, controls, and procedures. If you are a senior officer, you should seek to ensure that the internal controls and procedures in your business area are in place, understood and followed.

Accuracy of records and reports

It is important that those who rely on records and reports — managers and other decision makers, creditors, customers and auditors — have complete, accurate and timely information. False, misleading or incomplete information undermines the Company's ability to make good decisions about resources, employees and programs and may, in some cases, result in violations of law. Anyone involved in preparing financial or accounting records or reports, including financial statements and schedules, must be diligent in assuring that those records and reports are complete, accurate and timely. Anyone representing or certifying as to the accuracy of such records and reports should make an inquiry or review adequate to establish a good faith belief in their accuracy. Even if you are not directly involved in financial reporting or accounting, you are likely involved with financial records or reports of some kind. In addition, most employees have involvement with product, marketing or administrative activities, which can affect our reported financial condition or results. Therefore, the Company expects you, regardless of whether you are otherwise required to be familiar with finance or accounting matters, to use all reasonable efforts to ensure that every business record or report with which you deal is accurate, complete and reliable.

Intentional misconduct

You may not intentionally misrepresent the Company's financial performance or otherwise intentionally compromise the integrity of the Company's reports, records, policies and procedures. For example, you may not: report information or enter information in the Company's books, records or reports that fraudulently or intentionally hides, misrepresents or disguises the true nature of any financial or nonfinancial transaction or result; establish any undisclosed or unrecorded fund, account, asset or liability for any improper purpose; enter into any transaction or agreement that accelerates, postpones or otherwise manipulates the accurate and timely recording of revenues or expenses; intentionally misclassify transactions as to accounts, business units or accounting periods; or knowingly assist others in any of the above.

Dealing with auditors

Our auditors have a duty to review our records in a fair and accurate manner. You are expected to cooperate with independent and internal auditors in good faith and in accordance with law. In addition, you must not fraudulently induce or influence, coerce, manipulate or mislead our independent or internal auditors regarding financial records, processes, controls or procedures or other matters relevant to their engagement. You may not engage, directly or indirectly, any outside auditors to perform any audit, audit-related, tax or other services, including consulting, without written approval from the Chief Financial Officer, the Chief Legal Officer and the Audit Committee of the Board.

Obligation to investigate and report potential violations

You should make appropriate inquiries in the event you may see, for example: financial results that seem inconsistent with underlying business performance; inaccurate financial records, including travel and expense reports, time sheets or invoices; the circumventing of mandated review and approval procedures; transactions that appear inconsistent with good business economics; the absence or weakness of processes or controls; or persons within the Company seeking to improperly influence the work of our financial or accounting personnel, or our external or internal auditors. Dishonest or inaccurate reporting can lead to civil or even criminal liability for you and the Company and can lead to a loss of public faith in the Company. You are required to promptly report any case of suspected financial or operational misrepresentation or impropriety.

Keeping the Audit Committee informed

The Audit Committee plays an important role in ensuring the integrity of our financial statements. If you believe that questionable accounting or auditing conduct or practices have occurred or are occurring, you should notify the Audit Committee of the Board. In particular, the Chief Executive Officer and other officers, such as the Chief Financial Officer, the Vice President, Internal Audit or the Controller should promptly bring to the attention of the Audit Committee any information of which he or she may become aware concerning, for example: the accuracy of material disclosures made by the Company; material weaknesses or significant deficiencies in internal control over financial reporting; any evidence of fraud that involves an employee who has a significant role in the Company's financial reporting, disclosures or internal controls or procedures; or any evidence of a material violation of the policies in this Code regarding financial reporting.

Safeguarding Company Assets

Overview

All directors, officers and employees are responsible for the proper use of Company assets. This responsibility applies to all of the Company's assets, including your time, work and work product; cash and accounts; physical assets, such as inventory, equipment, vehicles, computers, systems, facilities and supplies; intellectual property, such as patents, copyrights, trademarks, inventions, technology and trade secrets; and other proprietary or nonpublic information. You should use all reasonable efforts to safeguard Company assets against loss, damage, misuse or theft. You should be alert to situations that could lead to loss, damage, misuse or theft of Company assets, and should report any loss, damage, misuse or theft as soon as it comes to your attention. You should not use, transfer, misappropriate, loan, sell or donate Company assets without appropriate authorization. You must take reasonable steps to ensure that the Company receives good value for Company funds spent. You may not use Company assets in a manner that would result in or facilitate the violation of law. You should use and safeguard assets entrusted to the Company's custody by customers, suppliers and others in the same manner as Company assets.

Protecting the Company's information

In the course of your involvement with the Company, you may come into possession of information that has not been disclosed or made available to the general public. This nonpublic information may include, among other things: financial data and projections; proprietary and technical information, such as trade secrets, patents, inventions, product plans and customer lists; information regarding corporate developments, such as business strategies, plans for acquisitions or other business combinations, divestitures, major contracts, expansion plans, financing transactions and management changes; personal information about employees; and nonpublic information of customers, suppliers and others. If you have any questions as to what constitutes nonpublic information, please consult the Legal Department.

All nonpublic information must only be used for Company business purposes. You have an obligation to use all reasonable efforts to safeguard the Company's nonpublic information. You may not disclose nonpublic information to anyone outside of the Company, except when disclosure is required by law or when disclosure is required for business purposes and appropriate steps have been taken to prevent misuse of that information. This responsibility includes not disclosing nonpublic information in Internet discussion groups, chat rooms, bulletin boards or other electronic media. In cases where disclosing nonpublic information is required or necessary, you should coordinate with the Legal Department. The misuse of nonpublic information is contrary to Company policy and may also be a violation of law. Each employee is required to sign a confidentiality agreement that addresses the use and disclosure of confidential information of the Company.

Maintaining and managing records

The Company is required by local, state, federal, foreign and other applicable laws, rules and regulations to retain certain records and to follow specific guidelines in managing its records. Records include paper documents, email, computer hard drives and other electronic data storage media and the electronic files stored thereon, and all other recorded information, regardless of medium or characteristics. Civil and criminal penalties for failure to comply with such guidelines can be severe for employees, agents, contractors and the Company. You should consult with the Legal Department regarding the retention of records in the case of actual or threatened litigation or government investigation. The Legal Department will notify you if a legal hold is placed on records for which you are responsible. A legal hold suspends all document destruction procedures in order to preserve appropriate records under special circumstances, such as litigation or government investigations. The Legal Department determines and identifies what types of records or documents are required to be placed under a legal hold. If a legal hold is placed on records for which you are responsible, you must preserve and protect the necessary records in accordance with instructions from the Legal Department. Records or supporting documents that are subject to a legal hold must not be destroyed, altered, or modified under any circumstance. A legal hold remains effective until it is officially released in writing by the Legal Department. If you are unsure whether a document has been placed under a legal hold, you should preserve and protect that document while you check with the Legal Department.

Responsibilities to our Customers, Suppliers and Competitors

Overview

You should respect the rights of, and deal fairly with, the Company's customers, suppliers, business partners and competitors in compliance with law. You should not take unfair advantage of anyone through deception, misrepresentation, manipulation, coercion, abuse of privileged information or any intentional unfair business practice.

Improper payments

You should not authorize, offer, promise or give, or solicit or accept, money, gifts, entertainment, privileges, gratuities, benefits or other items of value intended to improperly influence, directly or indirectly, any business decision or that otherwise violate law or create the appearance of impropriety. You should contact the Legal Department if you have any questions as to whether a payment is proper.

Gifts and entertainment

You may, from time to time, provide or accept business amenities to aid in building legitimate business relationships. Business amenities may include gifts, meals, services, entertainment, reimbursements, loans, favors, privileges or other items of value. Any business amenity should be consistent with customary business practice and should be reasonable and appropriate for the circumstance. Business amenities should not be lavish or excessive. Business amenities should not violate law or create an appearance of impropriety. You should avoid providing or accepting any cash payment, or other business amenity that can be construed as a bribe or payoff. All Company funds expended for business amenities must be accurately recorded in the Company's books and records. You should contact the Legal Department if you have any questions as to whether a business amenity is permissible. In some business situations outside of the United States, it is customary and lawful for business executives to present gifts to representatives of their business partners. These gifts may be of more than a nominal value, and under the circumstances, returning the gifts or paying for them may be an affront to the giver. If you find yourself in such a situation, you must report the gift to the Legal Department. In some cases, you may be required to turn the gift over to the Company. Special restrictions apply when dealing with government employees. For more information, see the section on "Working with Governments."

Selecting suppliers

The Company's policy is to select suppliers based on the merits of their products, services and business practices and to purchase supplies based on need, quality, service, price and other terms and conditions of sale. You may not establish a business relationship with any supplier if you know that its business practices violate applicable laws or this Code.

Handling the nonpublic information of others

You must handle the nonpublic information of others responsibly and in accordance with our agreements with them. Nonpublic information of others includes notes, reports, conclusions and other materials prepared by a Company employee based on the nonpublic information of others. You should not knowingly accept information offered by a third party, including a customer, supplier or business partner, that is represented as nonpublic, or that appears from the context or circumstances to be nonpublic, unless an appropriate nondisclosure agreement has been signed with the party offering the information. You should contact the Legal Department to coordinate the appropriate execution of nondisclosure agreements on behalf of the Company. Even after a nondisclosure agreement is in place, you should accept only the information that is necessary or appropriate to accomplish the purpose of receiving it, such as a decision on whether to proceed to negotiate a deal. If more detailed or extensive information is offered and it is not necessary or appropriate for your immediate purposes, it should be refused. If any such information is inadvertently received, it should be transferred to the Legal Department for appropriate disposition. Once the Company has received nonpublic information, you should use all reasonable efforts to: abide by the terms of the relevant nondisclosure agreement, including any obligations with respect to the return or destruction of the nonpublic information; limit the use of the nonpublic information to the purpose for which it was disclosed; and disseminate the nonpublic information only to those other Company employees, agents or contractors with a need to know the information to perform their jobs for the Company, as may be set forth in the relevant nondisclosure agreement.

Improperly obtaining or using assets or information

You may not unlawfully obtain or use the materials, products, intellectual property, proprietary or nonpublic information or other assets of anyone, including suppliers, customers, business partners and competitors. You may not coerce or improperly induce past or present employees of other companies to disclose proprietary or nonpublic information of their former or other employers.

Free and fair competition

It is our policy to lawfully compete in the marketplace. Our commitment to fairness includes respecting the rights of our competitors to compete lawfully in the marketplace and abiding by all applicable laws in the course of competing. Most countries have well developed bodies of law designed to encourage and protect free and fair competition. These laws are broad and far-reaching and regulate the Company's relationships with its distributors, resellers, suppliers and customers. Competition laws generally address the following areas: pricing practices (including predatory pricing, price fixing and price discrimination), discounting, terms of sale, credit terms, promotional allowances, secret rebates, exclusive dealerships or distributorships, product bundling, restrictions on carrying competing products, termination, and many other practices.

Competition laws also govern, usually quite strictly, relationships between the Company and its competitors. Collusion among competitors is illegal, and the consequences of a violation are severe. You must not enter into an agreement or understanding, written or oral, express or implied, with any competitor concerning prices, discounts or other terms or conditions of sale; profits or profit margins; costs; allocation of product, customers, markets or territories; limitations on production or supply; boycotts of customers or suppliers; or bids or the intent to bid, or even discuss or exchange information on these subjects. The Company is committed to obeying both the letter and spirit of these laws, which are often referred to as antitrust, consumer protection, competition or unfair competition laws. Although the spirit of these laws is straightforward, their application to particular situations can be quite complex. To ensure that the Company complies fully with these laws, you should have a basic knowledge of them and should promptly involve our Legal Department when questionable situations arise.

Working With Governments

Overview

Special rules govern our business and other dealings with governments. Directors, officers and employees, of the Company should use all reasonable efforts to comply with all applicable laws and regulations governing contact and dealings with governments, government employees and public officials. If you deal with governments, government employees or public officials, you should undertake to understand the special rules that apply. If you have any questions concerning government relations, you should contact the Legal Department.

Government contracts

You should use all reasonable efforts to comply with all relevant laws and regulations that apply to government contracting. You should refer any contract with any governmental entity to the Legal Department for review and approval.

Requests by regulatory authorities

You must cooperate with appropriate government inquiries and investigations in accordance with law. It is important, however, to protect the legal rights of the Company with respect to its nonpublic information. All government requests for Company information, documents or investigative interviews should be referred to the Legal Department. You should work with the Legal Department in responding to requests by regulatory authorities to ensure appropriate responses and to avoid inappropriate disclosure of attorney-client privileged materials, trade secret information or other nonpublic information. This policy should not be construed to prevent an employee from disclosing information to a government or law enforcement agency where the employee has reasonable cause to believe that the information discloses a violation of, or noncompliance with, a state or federal statute or regulation.

Improper payments to government officials

You may not offer any payment or business amenity to a public official or a government employee if doing so could reasonably be construed as having any connection with the Company's business, even if it has a nominal value or no value at all. You should be aware that what may be permissible in dealings with commercial businesses may be deemed illegal and possibly criminal in dealings with the government. You should contact the Legal Department for guidance. Whether you are located in the United States or abroad, you are also responsible for fully complying with the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. The Foreign Corrupt Practices Act makes it illegal to offer, pay, promise to pay or authorize to pay any money, gift or other item of value to any foreign official, political party or candidate to assist the Company or another to obtain or retain business. All managers and supervisory personnel are expected to monitor continued compliance with the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.

Political contributions

The Company reserves the right to communicate its position on important issues to elected representatives and other government officials. It is the Company's policy to comply fully with all local, state, federal, foreign and other applicable laws, rules and regulations regarding political contributions. The Company's assets — including Company funds, employees' work time and Company premises and equipment — must not be used for, or be contributed to, political campaigns or political activities under any circumstances without prior written approval.

Lobbying

You must obtain approval from the Legal Department for any work activity that requires lobbying communication with any member or employee of a legislative body or with any government official or employee in the formulation of legislation. Work activity covered by this policy includes meetings with legislators or members of their staffs or with senior executive branch officials on behalf of the Company. Preparation, research and other background activities that are done in support of such lobbying communication are also covered by this policy even if the communication ultimately is not made.

Trade restrictions

A number of countries maintain controls on the destinations to which products or software may be exported. Some of the strictest export controls are maintained by the United States against countries that the U.S. government considers unfriendly or as supporting international terrorism. The U.S. regulations are complex and apply both to deemed exports from the United States and to deemed exports of products from other countries when those products contain U.S.-origin components or technology. For example, software created in the United States is subject to these regulations even if duplicated and packaged abroad. In some circumstances, an oral presentation containing technical data made to foreign nationals in the United States or access by foreign nationals to certain technology may constitute a controlled export. The Legal Department can provide you with guidance on which countries are prohibited destinations for Company products or whether a proposed technical presentation or the provision of controlled technology to foreign nationals may require a U.S. government license.

Procedural Matters

Distribution

All directors, officers and employees will receive a copy of this Code at the time they join the Company and will receive periodic updates.

Acknowledgment

All new directors, officers and employees must sign an acknowledgment form confirming that they have read this Code, and that they understand and agree to comply with its provisions. Signed acknowledgment forms will be kept in Company personnel files. Failure to read this Code or to sign an acknowledgment form does not excuse any person from compliance with the terms of this Code.

Review and approvals

Except as otherwise provided in this Code, the Board or its designated committee must review and approve any matters requiring special permission under this Code for a member of the Board or an executive officer. Except as otherwise provided in this Code, the Chief Legal Officer, in consultation with the Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer or other officers as appropriate, must review and approve any matters requiring special permission under this Code for any other officer or employee. Copies of reviews and approvals will be retained by the Company.

Reporting violations

You should promptly report violations or suspected violations of this Code to the Chief Legal Officer at 2201 Lakeside Blvd, Richardson, Texas, 75082. Alternatively, you may submit your concern to the Company's Global Compliance whistleblower hotline at <https://www.alertline.com>. You may make an anonymous report on the whistleblower hotline. If your concerns relate to questionable accounting, internal accounting controls or auditing matters, the reporting of fraudulent financial information, or if the Chief Legal Officer or another executive officer is implicated in any violation or suspected violation, your concerns should be submitted (anonymously at your discretion) to the Company's Global Compliance whistleblower hotline at <https://www.alertline.com>, via email to the Vice President, Internal Audit at: audithotline@realpage.com, or at the following address:

Vice President, Internal Audit

RealPage, Inc., 2201 Lakeside Blvd.
Richardson, Texas 75082

You may also report your concerns directly to the Chairman of the Audit Committee at the following address:

Chairman of the Audit Committee

RealPage, Inc., 2201 Lakeside Blvd.
Richardson, Texas 75082

If you make an anonymous report, please provide as much detail as possible, including copies of any documents that you believe may be relevant to the issue. When reports are not made anonymously, reasonable efforts will be made to keep your identity confidential. In certain circumstances, however, your identity may become apparent during an investigation or may need to be disclosed (e.g., in regulatory proceedings). Accordingly, it is not possible for the Company to give a blanket guarantee of confidentiality. While it is the Company's desire to address matters internally, nothing in this Code should discourage you from reporting any illegal activity, including any violation of the antitrust laws, Foreign Corrupt Practices Act or any other federal, state or foreign law, rule or regulation to the appropriate regulatory authority. This Code should not be construed to prohibit you from testifying, participating or otherwise assisting in any state or federal administrative, judicial or legislative proceeding or investigation. Reprisals, threats, retribution or retaliation against any person who has in good faith reported a violation or a suspected violation of law, this Code or other Company policies, or against any person who is assisting in any investigation or process with respect to such a violation, is prohibited.

Investigations

The Board or its designated committee will be responsible for investigating violations and determining appropriate disciplinary action for matters involving members of the Board or executive officers. The Board or its designated committee may designate others to conduct or manage investigations on its behalf and recommend disciplinary action. Subject to the general authority of the Board to administer this Code, the Chief Legal Officer (in consultation with others as he or she deems appropriate) will be responsible for investigating violations and determining appropriate disciplinary action for other officers and employees. The Chief Legal Officer may designate others to conduct or manage investigations on their behalf and recommend disciplinary action. The Chief Legal Officer will periodically report Code violations and the corrective actions taken to the Board or its designated committee. The Board reserves the right to investigate violations and determine appropriate disciplinary action on its own and to designate others to do so in place of, or in addition to, the Chief Legal Officer.

The Company will promptly investigate any suspected violations. If it is determined that evidence of a violation exists, the individual subject to investigation will be notified. The subject of an investigation will have an opportunity to respond to any allegations made against that person. A person suspected of violating this Code may be suspended with or without pay while an investigation is conducted. The Company will follow local grievance procedures in jurisdictions where such procedures apply.

Disciplinary action

The Company will take appropriate action against any director, officer or employee whose actions are found to violate this Code. Disciplinary actions may include, at the Company's sole discretion, oral or written reprimand, suspension or immediate termination of employment or business relationship, or any other disciplinary action or combination of disciplinary actions as deemed appropriate to the circumstances. A record of the disciplinary action will be retained in the individual's personnel file. In determining what disciplinary action is appropriate in a particular case, the Company will take into account all relevant information, including the nature and severity of the violation, any history of warnings and violations, whether the violation appears to have been intentional or inadvertent and whether the violator reported his or her own misconduct. The Company will strive to enforce this Code in a consistent manner while accounting for all relevant information. An alleged violator may make a written request for reconsideration within 14 days of notification of the final disciplinary decision. Where the Company has suffered a loss, it may pursue its remedies against the individuals or entities responsible. Certain violations of this Code may also be subject to civil or criminal prosecution by governmental authorities and others. Where laws have been violated, the Company will report violators to the appropriate authorities.

Additional information

Nothing in this Code creates or implies an employment contract or term of employment. Employment at the Company is employment at-will. Employment at-will may be terminated with or without cause and with or without notice at any time by the employee or the Company. Nothing in this Code shall limit the right to terminate employment at-will. The policies in this Code do not constitute a complete list of Company policies or a complete list of the types of conduct that can result in discipline, up to and including, discharge.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

RealPage is an Equal Employment Opportunity employer. All persons will be considered for employment without attention to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, national origin, veteran or disability status. This EEO Policy applies to all terms and conditions of employment, including hiring, placement, promotion, termination, layoff, recall, transfer, leaves of absence, compensation and training.

RealPage complies with applicable federal, state and local laws governing nondiscrimination in employment in every location in which the Company has facilities.

Improper interference with the ability of RealPage employees to perform their expected job duties is not tolerated. RealPage invites any employee or any applicant for employment to bring questions, comments or complaints with respect to RealPage's EEO Policy, or the implementation and administration of that policy, to the Chief People Officer. At no time will any covered employee, or covered applicant for employment, who exercises their rights pursuant to RealPage's Equal Opportunity Policy be subject to retaliation or discipline or have their opportunities for employment adversely affected.

If you believe you have been treated, or observe anyone else being treated, contrary to the provisions of this policy, you should report the behavior to your supervisor or other leader in your work group, your Human Resource leader, or the confidential Ethics Point at:

Anti-harassment, Discrimination Prevention and Complaint Procedure

RealPage is committed to a work environment in which all individuals are treated with deference. Everyone has the right to work in an environment that promotes equal employment opportunities and prohibits unlawful discriminatory practices, including harassment or bullying. Therefore, RealPage expects that all relationships among persons in the office or working remotely will be professional and free of bias, prejudice and harassment. RealPage encourages reporting of all perceived incidents of discrimination or harassment; all reports will be promptly and thoroughly investigated. RealPage prohibits retaliation against any individual who reports discrimination or harassment or participates in an investigation of such reports.

Sexual harassment is unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature which makes a person feel offended, humiliated, and/or intimidated. It includes situations where a person is asked to engage in sexual activity as a condition of that person's employment, as well as situations which create an environment which is hostile, intimidating or humiliating for the recipient. Sexual harassment may be physical, verbal or nonverbal. Examples of conduct or behavior which constitute sexual harassment include, but are not limited to:

Physical conduct

- Nonconsensual or unwelcome physical contact (including massaging, stroking, kissing, hugging, fondling or other inappropriate touching)
- Physical violence, including sexual assault
- The use of job-related threats or rewards to solicit sexual favors

Verbal conduct

- Comments on a worker's appearance, age, private life, etc.
- Sexual comments, stories and jokes
- Sexual advances or requests for physical intimacy
- Insults based on sexual orientation
- Repeated and unwanted social invitations
- Condescending or paternalistic remarks
- Sending sexually explicit messages

Nonverbal conduct

- Display of sexually explicit or suggestive material
- Sexually suggestive gestures

Harassment based on any protected characteristic is prohibited. Under this policy, harassment is verbal, written or physical conduct that denigrates or shows hostility or aversion toward an individual because of their:

- Age (40 and over)
- Ancestry
- Color
- Religious Creed (including religious dress and grooming practices)
- Denial of Family and Medical Care Leave
- Disability (mental and physical) including HIV and AIDS
- Marital Status
- Medical Condition (cancer and genetic characteristics)
- Genetic Information
- Military and Veteran Status
- National Origin (including language use restrictions)
- Race
- Sex (which includes pregnancy, childbirth, breastfeeding and medical conditions related to pregnancy, childbirth or breastfeeding)
- Gender, Gender Identity and Gender Expression
- Sexual Orientation or that of their relatives, friends or associates, and that:
- Has the purpose or effect of creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment
- Has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance
- Otherwise adversely affects an individual's employment opportunities

Harassing conduct includes, but is not limited to, epithets, slurs or negative stereotyping, threatening, bullying, intimidating, or hostile acts, denigrating jokes and written or graphic material that denigrates or shows hostility or aversion toward an individual or group that is placed on walls or elsewhere on the RealPage premises or circulated in the workplace, on Company time, or with Company equipment by email, Microsoft Teams, phone (including voice messages), text message, social networking sites, etc. This list is illustrative only and not exhaustive. No form of harassment will be tolerated.

Any RealPager who believes they have been subjected to harassment as outlined in this policy or who has witnessed such harassment by any RealPage employee, client, customer, supplier or any other person in connection with employment at RealPage, must take the following actions to ensure the Company is aware of the situation:

- If comfortable doing so, firmly confront the harasser and ask them to stop, preferably with a witness present.
- If the harassment continues, or if you are uncomfortable confronting the harasser, immediately report the harassment to either your Human Resources Business Partner, the Vice President of Human Resources or Chief People Officer.
- If you are uncomfortable reporting the harassment to Human Resources, you may report it via EthicsPoint, RealPage's confidential tool for reporting unethical behavior, either using your name or anonymously.
- Upon notification, a timely, thorough, and objective investigation of the situation will be conducted. Employees must cooperate fully with the investigation. The investigation will be conducted to protect privacy to the extent possible; however, confidentiality cannot be guaranteed. Confidentiality will be maintained throughout the investigatory process to the extent consistent with adequate investigation and appropriate corrective action.

Unlawful Retaliation Policy

The Company strictly prohibits and does not tolerate unlawful retaliation against any employee by any employee. All forms of unlawful retaliation are prohibited, including any form of discipline, reprisal, intimidation or other form of retaliation for participating in any activity protected by law. Examples of protected activities include:

- Filing a good-faith complaint of discrimination or harassment
- Participating in an internal investigation
- Requesting an accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act
- Requesting or taking leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act
- Filing a worker's compensation claim

The examples above are illustrative only and not exhaustive. No form of retaliation for any protected activity will be tolerated.

In general, retaliation is defined as any kind of negative action against a current or former employee that may be seen as a form of punishment or that creates a hostile, threatening or uncomfortable environment as a result of an employee's protected activity. Retaliation in the workplace may be expressed in a variety of ways. These include but are not limited to:

- Termination or a retraction or reduction of benefits
- Reduction of compensation
- Poor work performance evaluation
- Exclusion from corporate events or meetings
- Defamation of character

Employees that engage in retaliation will be subject to disciplinary action that may also result in termination.

Americans With Disabilities Act

The Company is committed to complying fully with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendments Act of 2008 (ADAAA) in ensuring equal employment opportunities to qualified individuals with a disability. The ADA provides protection from discrimination to individuals with a disability. The Company, its managers and supervisors will not discriminate against qualified individuals based on disability regarding job applications, hiring, advancement, termination, compensation, training or other terms, conditions, or privileges of employment. The Company holds all employees, including those with disabilities, to the same performance and conduct standards, and all employees must perform the essential functions of their positions with or without reasonable accommodation(s).

An individual with a disability is defined as a person who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, has a record of such an impairment, or is regarded as having such an impairment. Applicants and employees are considered qualified if they meet the qualifications for the position, and they can perform the essential functions of the job with or without reasonable accommodation(s).

RealPage Human Resources Department, in partnership with New York Life, is the administrator of the ADA process. Employees and applicants with disabilities may initiate requests for reasonable accommodations by contacting New York Life at 888-842-4462.

Upon receiving a request for accommodation, New York Life will send ADA paperwork to the requestor. The forms must be completed by the requestor and the requestor's physician and returned to New York Life within 10 days. Upon receipt of completed forms, New York Life will send the request to the business for review. Human Resources and the requestor's manager will determine the precise limitations and how best to respond to the need. Any negotiations that are required will be communicated to the employee by New York Life. The employee has an obligation to provide enough information about the existence of a disability, extent of limitations, and ability to perform essential job functions to determine a reasonable accommodation. All potential accommodations that do not pose an undue hardship will be explored. A final determination of how the accommodation request will be resolved will be communicated to the employee by New York Life and will be documented in writing to the employee and a copy retained with New York Life. The Company is not obligated to provide the specific accommodation requested by the employee. All requests will be evaluated in good faith.

The Company will not discriminate or retaliate against any employee or applicant requesting a reasonable accommodation under this policy, or against any person who reports a violation of this policy or participates in an investigation of a complaint under this policy.

Religious Accommodation

RealPage will reasonably accommodate a employee's religious practices unless doing so results in undue hardship to the Company. Business necessity, operational considerations, legal requirements, and financial cost or expense may be considered in determining the extent of any accommodation.

If a religious accommodation request cannot be handled through the use of personal time or scheduled and approved paid vacation, the employee should inform their manager by sending an email providing details around the requested accommodation. Attendance at social gatherings, including those that occur during working hours, that may conflict with an individual's religion are never required.

It is the responsibility of the employee to inform their supervisor that a religious accommodation is needed. Supervisors must follow the principles of this policy and should consider various options to reasonably accommodate the request, such as:

- Adjusting work schedule
- Offering flexible scheduling, including arrival/departure times and work breaks
- Changing job assignments or duties
- Allowing variance from the Company's Attire and Personal Appearance Policy
- Allowing religious expression so long as there is no disruption to the Company's business and to other employees
- Allowing unpaid time off

An employer is not required to make an accommodation if it would impose an undue hardship on the Company. All accommodation requests and resolutions must be documented and retained. Supervisors must consult with Human Resources when they receive a request for religious accommodation.

Conflicts of Interest

Employees must avoid any relationship or activity that might impair, or even appear to impair, their ability to make objective and fair decisions when performing their jobs. At times, an employee may be faced with situations in which business actions taken on behalf of RealPage may conflict with the employee's own personal interests. Company property, information or business opportunities may not be used for personal gain.

Conflicts of interest could arise in the following circumstances:

- Being employed by, or acting as a consultant to, a competitor or potential competitor, supplier, or contractor, regardless of the nature of the employment, while employed with RealPage

- Hiring or supervising family members or closely related persons
- Serving as a board member for an outside commercial Company or organization
- Owning or having a substantial interest in a competitor, supplier or contractor
- Accepting gifts, discounts, favors or services from a customer/potential customer, competitor or supplier, unless equally available to all Company employees

Before engaging in any activity, transaction or relationship that might give rise to a conflict of interest, employees must seek review from their manager or the Human Resources department.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, neither this policy nor any other provision of this Employee Handbook prevents an employee from exercising, in any way, their rights under Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act, such as filing an unfair labor practice charge with the National Labor Relations Board (“NLRB”), assisting others in filing such a charge, participating in the NLRB’s investigative process, or speaking with others about the terms and conditions of their employment.

Employment of Relatives and Family Members

RealPage recognizes that family members of current employees may seek employment at the Company. To promote a productive environment, free from conflicts of interest as well as favoritism, RealPage has adopted the following rules and guidelines related to employment of family members.

This policy applies to all RealPage employees as well as job applicants. As used herein, “family member” includes not only traditional familial relationships, but also domestic partners and extended family members.

Hiring of family members

Family members seeking employment at RealPage must use the standard application process. Human Resources must review all hiring decisions of family members.

Working relationship of family members

Family members may not directly supervise another family member or occupy a position that has influence over a family member’s employment, transfer/promotion, salary considerations, or other management or personnel considerations. Human Resources must review and approve in writing any business requirements that require deviation from this policy.

Personal Relationships

RealPagers are encouraged to socialize and develop professional relationships in the workplace provided that these relationships do not interfere with the work performance of either individual or with the effective functioning of the workplace. Employees who engage in personal relationships (including romantic and sexual relationships) should be aware of their professional responsibilities and will be responsible for assuring that the relationship does not raise concerns about favoritism, bias, ethics and conflict of interest.

Romantic or sexual relationships between employees where one individual has influence or control over the other's conditions of employment (such as when one employee supervises another) are not permitted. These relationships, even if consensual, may ultimately result in conflict or difficulties in the workplace. If such a relationship currently exists or develops, it must be disclosed to Human Resources so that appropriate action may be taken. While both employees are encouraged to report any such relationship, the supervisor or employee who has influence or control over the other's conditions of employment is ultimately responsible for ensuring the relationship is reported. Failure of a manager or supervisor to disclose such a relationship may lead to disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Outside Employment

Employees are expected to devote their full working time to the Company. However, with manager approval, employees may be permitted to engage in outside work or to hold other jobs, subject to the restrictions outlined below. Even when approval for outside employment is granted, the employee's first employment obligation is to their position with the Company.

Activities and conduct away from the job must not compete with, conflict with, or compromise the Company's interests or adversely affect job performance and the ability to fulfill all job responsibilities. Employees are prohibited from performing any services for customers outside of work that are normally performed by RealPage. This prohibition also extends to the unauthorized use of any Company tools or equipment and the unauthorized use or disclosure of any confidential information. In addition, employees are not to solicit or conduct any outside business during paid working time.

Employees are cautioned to carefully consider the demands that additional work activity will create before seeking approval for outside employment. Outside employment will not be considered an excuse for poor job performance, absenteeism, tardiness, leaving early, refusal to travel, refusal to work overtime or different hours. If RealPage determines that an employee's outside work interferes with performance, the employee may be asked to terminate the outside employment.

Children in the Workplace

From time-to-time, management may permit employees to bring children into the workplace. Employees are responsible for verifying with their manager the specific circumstances under which their children are allowed in the workplace. When possible, employees should consult with their manager prior to any child entering the workplace. Circumstances in which management may permit employees to bring children into the workplace generally fall into the following categories:

- Brief visits or lunch (e.g., an employee brings their child, grandchild or other minor relative in to introduce that child to coworkers)
- Specific events that are employer-sanctioned and at which attendance by children is encouraged (e.g., Take Your Child to Work Day)
- In the event of an emergency

Children are not to be brought to the workplace on a regular basis in lieu of childcare. An employee who brings a child into the workplace shall not leave the child unsupervised. If management allows the occasional visit of children to the workplace, both the employee responsible for the child and workplace management must accept certain responsibilities (listed below) to protect the welfare of the child and the integrity of the workplace.

An employee who brings a child to the workplace must:

- Be the individual who primarily supervises and cares for the child while in the workplace
- Prevent any breach of confidential information
- Accept full responsibility for all aspects of the child's welfare and behavior, including: the safety of the child, disruption to coworkers, unauthorized or inappropriate use of Company resources, and any damage to property or injury to persons.

Department leadership must:

- Determine that either hazards are not likely to exist, or that hazards can be controlled under the circumstances in which the child will be present
- Address potential issues of possible disruption to coworkers in the workplace
- Consider the extent to which the child's presence in the workplace poses a risk of breaching confidentiality of information in the workplace
- Consider the extent to which the child's presence is appropriate to the specific work being accomplished

Department leadership has the authority to deny the presence of children in the workplace. The Department leader may revoke previously granted permission for the employee to bring the child to the workplace (e.g., if the child's presence is later determined to be disruptive to the workplace). Any employee who violates this policy may be subject to disciplinary action.

EMPLOYMENT & HIRING

Background and Reference Checks

RealPage conducts preemployment background checks on applicants who accept an offer of employment to ensure that individuals who join RealPage are well qualified and that RealPage maintains a safe and productive work environment. Background checks may include verification of any information on the applicant's resume or employment application, drug screening, and criminal screening. All background checks are conducted in conformity with the Federal Fair Credit Reporting Act and state and federal privacy and antidiscrimination laws. Reports are kept confidential and are only viewed by select individuals involved in the hiring process.

Additional checks, such as a driving record, may be made on applicants if appropriate and job-related. RealPage reserves the right to conduct a background check consistent with applicable law for current employees upon reasonable suspicion of criminal activity, or in connection with a promotion, transfer or access request, in the same manner as described above.

Employee Referral Program

For certain positions, active RealPage employees may be eligible for referral bonuses for successfully referring candidates who are subsequently hired as a regular, full-time employee and remain employed for 90 days. Guidelines for referral bonuses may vary by opening.

The hiring manager, Human Resources and employees at the Senior Director level and above are not eligible for a referral bonus. Referral bonus programs are reviewed periodically and may be modified or eliminated at any time at RealPage's sole discretion, with or without notice.

Employee Classification Categories

All employees are designated as either nonexempt or exempt from certain requirements in state and federal wage and hour laws, such as overtime and minimum wage requirements. The following is intended to help employees understand their classifications, employment status and benefit eligibility.

Nonexempt employees are employees whose work is covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and comparable state wage and hour laws. They are not exempt from the laws' requirements concerning minimum wage, overtime eligibility and recordkeeping. Nonexempt employees are also called "hourly."

Exempt employees are employees who are exempt from the overtime provisions (and potentially other provisions) of the FLSA and comparable state wage and hour laws. Exempt employees are also called "salaried."

RealPage has established the following categories for both nonexempt and exempt employees:

- Regular, full time: Employees who are not in a temporary status and who are regularly scheduled to work RealPage's full-time schedule of 40 hours per week. Generally, these employees are eligible for the full benefits package, subject to the terms, conditions and limitations of each benefit program and applicable law. Work locations vary by role and are determined by the needs of the business, which could be fully remote, hybrid or fully in the office.
- Regular, full time, reduced schedule: Employees who are not in a temporary status and who are regularly scheduled to work between 30 and 39 hours per week. Regular, full time, reduced schedule employees are eligible for benefits offered by RealPage subject to the terms, conditions and limitations of each benefit program and applicable law. Work locations vary by role and are determined by the needs of the business, which could be fully remote, hybrid or fully in the office.
- Regular, part time: Employees who are not in a temporary status and who are regularly scheduled to work less than 30 hours per week. Regular, part-time employees are eligible for some of the benefits offered by RealPage subject to the terms, conditions and limitations of each benefit program and applicable law. Work locations vary by role and are determined by the needs of the business, which could be fully remote, hybrid or fully in the office.
- Temporary/intern: Employees who are hired to temporarily supplement the workforce or to assist in the completion of a specific project and who are scheduled to work RealPage's full-time or part-time schedule for a limited duration. Employment beyond any initially stated period does not in any way imply a change in employment status. Temporary workers are not eligible for Company benefits unless specifically stated otherwise in Company policy, deemed eligible by relevant plan documents, or required by law.
- Consultant/contractor: Not an employee of RealPage or eligible for benefits. May provide services to more than one organization. Work is project-based and relatively independent. Any consultants/contractors must be disclosed to Recruiting.

Flex First RealPage is committed to helping our employees face the demands of juggling work, family and personal obligations by offering employees, where possible, increased flexibility over where they work and allowing them to work where they are most productive. "Flexible First" requires a partnership between you and your leader to find a schedule that works for you, your role and your team. Please refer to the Flex First Guide in UKG for more details.

Training

RealPagers will be required to participate in various training courses throughout their career with RealPage. Specified courses will be required within the first few weeks of employment and may also be required annually based upon factors, which may include the employee's particular job position and work location. All employees are encouraged to seek out and participate in training that supports their career growth and development and can work with their supervisor to develop training plans.

Attendance and Punctuality

Attendance is an essential function of every job at RealPage. Employees must schedule and obtain manager approval to take vacation and non-Company holidays in advance. Sick leave may be used in the case of emergency or sudden illness without prior scheduling with manager approval; however, employees are required to contact their manager when they are aware they will be absent. The option for a leave of absence should be examined when an employee has missed or will miss five or more days of work for personal medical reasons. Please see Time Off/Leave of Absence section for details on the Leave of Absence process. Patterns of absenteeism or tardiness may result in discipline even if the employee has not yet exhausted available paid time off. Absences due to illnesses or injuries that qualify under the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) will not be counted against an employee's attendance record. Medical certification within the guidelines of the FMLA is required in these instances.

Not reporting to work and not calling to report the absence is a no-call, no-show and is a serious matter. Absent extenuating circumstances, a no-call, no-show lasting two days is considered job abandonment and will be deemed an employee's voluntary resignation of employment. Ask your manager for department specific policies on attendance and punctuality.

Attire and Personal Appearance

All RealPagers should project a professional image while at work by being appropriately attired. RealPage employees are expected to be neat, clean and well-groomed while on the job. Clothing must be consistent with the standards for a business environment and must be appropriate to the type of work being performed.

RealPage is confident that employees will use their best judgment regarding attire and appearance. Management reserves the right to determine appropriateness under specific circumstances and in compliance with applicable federal and state antidiscrimination laws. Any employee who is inappropriately dressed will be counseled, or in severe cases, may be sent home to change clothes.

Progressive Discipline

Every RealPager has the duty and the responsibility to abide by existing rules and policies and to perform their duties to the best of their ability and to the standards set forth in their job description and by department leadership. RealPage supports the use of progressive disciplinary action to address issues, such as poor work performance, attendance or misconduct.

Progressive discipline may include one or more of the following: a verbal warning, a written warning, and/or a Performance Improvement Plan ("PIP"). These procedures are designed to improve performance and prevent a recurrence of undesirable behavior, absenteeism, and/or performance issues.

There are circumstances, however, when progressive discipline is not appropriate due to the gravity of an employee's misconduct or other factors. RealPage reserves the right to determine the disciplinary action plan based on the facts of each individual situation.

Separation of Employment

Separation of employment can occur for several different reasons.

- Resignation: Resigning employees are encouraged to provide written notice at least two weeks in advance of their departure date to facilitate a smooth transition out of the organization. If an employee provides less notice than requested, RealPage may deem the individual ineligible for rehire.
- Job abandonment: Employees who fail to report to work, contact their supervisor, and/or become inaccessible for two or more consecutive workdays shall be considered to have abandoned their job without notice. Their supervisor should notify Human Resources at the expiration of the second workday to initiate the paperwork to terminate the employee. Employees who are terminated due to job abandonment are ineligible for rehire.
- Termination: Employees of RealPage are employed on an at-will basis, and the Company reserves the right to terminate an employee at any time with or without cause.

Health insurance benefits terminate at midnight the day of termination. Information for Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation (COBRA) continued health coverage will be provided as required by applicable law. Paid time off (vacation and sick) is not compensable upon termination, unless required by applicable state or local law.

Return of Company property

Separating employees will be given instructions for the return of Company property at the time of separation. It is the departing employee's responsibility to ensure all Company property, including but not limited to laptops, cellphones, keys, PCs, security badges or other Company issued items are returned as directed. Failure to return Company property may result in deductions from the employee's final paycheck, as permitted by applicable law.

Rehire

Former employees who left RealPage in good standing and were classified as eligible for rehire may be considered for rehire following the Company's standard application process. If rehired within 90 days, you will be eligible to bridge time for benefit accrual purposes. If your position was eliminated due to reduction in force and you are rehired within one year of your last day worked, your seniority will be bridged for benefit accrual purposes.

Managers must obtain approval from the Human Resources representative prior to rehiring a former employee. An applicant or employee who is terminated for violating policy or who resigned in lieu of termination from employment due to a policy violation will be ineligible for rehire.

Employment Verification and References

RealPage utilizes a third-party firm to provide employment verification services for dates of employment, positions held and, with proper verification, compensation history. For employment verification inquiries, please visit: www.thomas-and-Company.com and use RealPage Code: REAL809, as well as your social security number. Employees or former employees should refer those seeking employment verifications or references to Human Resources or Thomas & Company.

DISPUTE RESOLUTION POLICY

Dispute Resolution Policy

PLEASE READ THIS DISPUTE RESOLUTION POLICY ("DRP") CAREFULLY. UNLESS YOU OPT-OUT OF THIS DRP, ANY COVERED DISPUTES MUST BE RESOLVED BY INDIVIDUAL ARBITRATION, AND YOU ARE WAIVING YOUR RIGHT TO HAVE A COURT HEARING, AN ADMINISTRATIVE HEARING, A JUDGE OR JURY TRIAL, AND/OR BRING OR PARTICIPATE IN A CLASS OR REPRESENTATIVE ACTION.

1. Purpose of the DRP.

The purpose of the DRP is to resolve Covered Disputes (defined in Section 3) through final and binding individual arbitration in accordance with the terms of this DRP.

2. Covered parties.

This DRP applies to the Company, You, and all Covered Individuals (referred to in this DRP collectively as "Parties" and individually as a "Party"). "Company" means and refers to: RealPage, as defined herein, and its parents, subsidiaries, and affiliates; and its or their other affiliated operating and brand-named divisions and entities, and its or their respective agents, employees, officers, directors, investors, and owners, who are all intended third party beneficiaries of this DRP.¹ "You" (and its possessive form "your") means and refers to you. "Covered Individual" (and its plural "Covered Individuals") means and refers to any individual who has applied for employment with Company in the United States, who is actually or allegedly employed by Company in the United States, or whose actual or alleged employment with Company in the United States terminates at any point after becoming bound by this DRP.

3. Covered disputes.

This DRP applies only to "Covered Disputes," which are defined to mean any and all claims, causes of action, or other disputes or controversies that already occurred, now exist, or arise in the future between You and the Company and/or a Covered Individual. Such Covered Disputes can be based on any legal, equitable or other theory but must be claims, causes of action or other disputes or controversies that could be properly brought in a federal, state, or local court or agency under applicable laws.

Except as stated in Section 4 of this DRP, Covered Disputes include those arising out of or related to: (i) any and all aspects of Your employment with or work for Company, including without limitation, application for such employment or work, the termination of such employment or work, and/or any of the terms, conditions, or benefits of such employment or work (including any wage and hour issues); (ii) issues of arbitrability, such as the formation, interpretation, applicability or enforceability of this DRP, except to the extent they are Excluded Disputes; (iii) the procedures to be followed in the arbitration proceedings; (iv) allegations of delay and waiver, including issues arising as to alleged waiver by litigation conduct; (v) whether prerequisites such as time limits, notice, laches, estoppel, and other conditions precedent to an obligation to arbitrate have been met; and (vi) any disputes over the payment and/or apportionment of the arbitration forum costs (including arbitrator fees), including as to whether the arbitration forum costs provisions of this DRP are unconscionable. Covered Disputes also include those that arose or accrued before or after becoming bound by this DRP, including those asserted in a previously-threatened or filed and/or currently-pending Class/Collective Action (as defined in Section 11) or PAGA Representative Action (as defined in Section 11) in which either no class or collective certification has been granted by the court as of the date of becoming bound by this DRP, or You have elected to not join as a party to the Class/Collective Action or PAGA Representative Action.² Covered Disputes must only be heard and decided by the appointed arbitrator.

4. Disputes that are not covered by the DRP.

This DRP does not apply to the following “Excluded Disputes”: (i) claims for workers’ compensation benefits, unemployment or disability insurance or other health or welfare benefits under government-administered programs; (ii) claims arising under a pension, retirement, or other health and welfare benefit plan that contains an arbitration or other dispute resolution procedure; (iii) claims within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board and/or claims or disputes required to be grieved and/or arbitrated under the terms of an applicable collective bargaining agreement, if any; (iv) claims arising or regulated under federal or state law for which there is an unwaivable specific statutory or regulatory enactment making such claims not arbitrable; (v) claims for temporary or provisional equitable relief in aid of arbitration under this DRP, as permitted under applicable law, which may be brought either before the appointed arbitrator or a court of competent jurisdiction; (vi) disputes regarding the applicability, interpretation, enforceability, and/or severability of the provisions of Section 11, below, including whether such provisions are governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, which must be decided only by a court of competent jurisdiction; (vii) disputes as to whether Company and any Covered Individual agreed to allow any Representative Action (as defined in Section 11) to be arbitrated under this DRP, which must be decided only by a court of competent jurisdiction; and (viii) any disputes as to whether any claims or disputes are Excluded Disputes, which must be decided only by a court of competent jurisdiction.

5. Exhaustion of administrative remedies.

A Party must still satisfy any applicable statutory, regulatory or jurisdictional prerequisites to pursuing any Covered Disputes in accordance with this DRP. This includes, within the applicable time period provided by law, giving proper notices to, filing administrative charges with, or obtaining right to sue notices or letters from governmental agencies.

6. Waiver of right to trial and administrative proceedings.

The Parties waive any and all rights to a judge or jury trial and/or administrative hearing of Covered Disputes and agree to resolve such disputes only through final and binding individual arbitration under this DRP.

7. Mandatory informal dispute resolution process.

Unless You and the Company agree otherwise, the Parties agree to make a good faith effort to resolve Covered Disputes informally prior to initiating arbitration. The Party seeking to initiate or raise a Covered Dispute must first send a written notice to the other providing a detailed description of the Covered Dispute, full contact information, sufficient information to enable the other Party to identify the matter at issue (including any relevant dates of employment or work, location of employment or work and position(s) held), and a detailed description of (1) the nature and basis of any claims, and (2) the nature and basis of the relief sought, with a detailed calculation for it. Your notice to the Company must be personally signed by You (and your attorney if You are represented). Our notice to You will be personally signed by a Company representative (and our attorney if we are represented). You must send your notice to the Company via email to legal@realpage.com; we will send our notice to You to the most recent contact information that you have provided to us.

For a period of 60 calendar days from the date of receipt of a fully completed notice from the other Party, you and Company will engage in good faith in an effort to resolve the Covered Dispute informally. If the matter is not resolved within this period, you or we may commence arbitration consistent with the process set forth below. Compliance with this informal dispute resolution process is required and a condition precedent to initiating arbitration. Any applicable statute of limitations (or other limitations period) shall be tolled for the time the Parties engage in this informal process. A court of competent jurisdiction has the authority to enforce this condition precedent to arbitration and to enjoin the filing or prosecution of arbitration. Notwithstanding the foregoing, you and we retain the right to seek damages in connection with noncompliance with this process in arbitration.

8. Commencing an arbitration.

A demand for arbitration of any Covered Disputes must be made in writing, comply with the requirements for pleadings under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("FRCP"), and be served on the other Party in the manner provided for service of a summons under the FRCP within the applicable statute of limitations periods (including on a proper registered agent for service of process).

9. Arbitrator selection.

You and the Company must mutually agree on the selection of a single neutral arbitrator who is experienced in the area of the law raised by the Covered Disputes. If the Parties cannot agree, the Parties will use the procedures for appointing a neutral arbitrator as set forth by the designated dispute resolution services provider ("DRS Provider"). The Parties expressly agree that the International Institute for Conflict Prevention & Resolution, Inc.³ ("CPR") shall be the DRS Provider authorized to administer the arbitration under this DRP. Except as modified by this DPR, CPR shall administer the arbitration pursuant to its Administered Employment Arbitration Rules (the "CPR Rules"). The parties further agree that, if applicable, the procedures of the CPR Employment-Related Mass Claims Protocol (the "Protocol") shall also govern the arbitration. The Protocol may be found here. The arbitration will be conducted within 50 miles of the Covered Individual's primary place of residence. Any arbitrator appointed by CPR rather than by agreement of the Parties must be a retired federal or state court judge meeting the qualifications set forth above.

10. Arbitration rules and procedures.

The FRCP and the Federal Rules of Evidence (“FRE”), both of which can be found at www.uscourts.gov, apply to any arbitration proceedings under this DRP. The appointed arbitrator must interpret, apply and enforce this DRP only as written and the terms of this DRP control if different or inconsistent with any FRCP rules and/or the CPR Rules. In any arbitration arising out of or relating to this DRP, each Party shall be permitted to serve no more than 25 interrogatories, no more than 25 requests for production of documents, no more than 25 requests for admissions and each side may take three depositions and each side may issue third-party subpoenas as appropriate. Any Party may conduct additional discovery by mutual agreement of the Parties, or if permitted by the appointed arbitrator for good cause shown.

11. Class/Collective Action and PAGA Representative Action Waivers.

- a. Class/Collective Action Waiver. “Class/Collective Action” means any type of (i) class action or arbitration, (ii) collective action or arbitration (including without limitation pursuant to the Fair Labor Standards Act [“FLSA”]), (iii) joined, consolidated, or coordinated actions or arbitrations, and/or (iv) claims or disputes brought in a representative capacity on behalf of the general public, on behalf of other current or former employees and/or employment applicants of the Company (including without limitation Covered Individuals), or on behalf of other persons or entities alleged to be similarly situated or aggrieved. “Class/Collective Action” does not include claims under the California Labor Code Private Attorney General Act, Cal. Lab. Code § 2699 et seq. (“PAGA”), which are instead subject to Paragraph 11(b) of this DRP. Under this DRP, a Party (a) cannot bring or participate in a Class/Collective Action in connection with any Covered Disputes, (b) has no agreement, right, or authority for any Covered Disputes to be heard, arbitrated, or decided as any type of Class/Collective Action, and (c) expressly waives any and all rights to bring or participate in any type of Class/Collective Action to resolve, decide, or adjudicate any Covered Disputes.

The appointed arbitrator will have no power, authority, or jurisdiction to: (i) hear or decide, or award any remedy or relief on, any Covered Disputes fashioned as any type of class, collective, or representative action; (ii) join or consolidate claims by more than one Covered Individual against the Company in a single arbitration proceeding; (iii) award injunctive relief other than on an individual basis in favor of the Party asserting the Covered Disputes, if necessary and as permitted and by applicable law; or (iv) interpret, apply, enforce, or modify this DRP in any manner that would empower or authorize the arbitrator to do any of the foregoing.

- b. “PAGA Representative Action” means any claim under the California Labor Code Private Attorney General Act, Cal. Lab. Code § 2699 et seq. (“PAGA”) brought on behalf of any current or former employee(s) and/or employment applicant(s) of the Company (including without limitation Covered Individuals) or other persons or entities alleged to be similarly situated or aggrieved, other than You. To the maximum extent permitted by law, You agree not to bring any PAGA Representative Action. You agree to bring and pursue any and all claims under PAGA in arbitration, on an individual basis, and only based on alleged violations against You. If this agreement not to bring a PAGA Representative Action is unenforceable, then You agree that any PAGA claim that is based on alleged violations against other employees must proceed in court, and that, as a “Non-Arbitrable Claim” within the meaning of Paragraph 20 of this Agreement, such non-arbitrable PAGA proceedings in court will be stayed pending resolution of Your individual PAGA claim in arbitration. To the maximum extent permitted by law, You also agree not to participate in any claim or action under PAGA brought by someone else which is based on alleged violations by the Company against You. You agree that any claim or action under PAGA brought by someone else based on alleged violations against You will be severed to enforce the agreement to arbitrate, on an individual basis, any PAGA claim based on violations against You.

The appointed arbitrator will have no power, authority or jurisdiction to: (i) hear or decide, or award any remedy or relief on, any Covered Disputes under PAGA fashioned as any type of action for any persons other than You; (ii) join or consolidate in the arbitration Covered Disputes of any kind brought by or against any other Covered Individuals or Company; (iii) award injunctive relief other than on an individual basis in favor of the Party asserting the Covered Disputes, if necessary and as permitted and by applicable law; or (iv) interpret, apply, enforce, or modify this DRP in any manner that would empower or authorize the arbitrator to do any of the foregoing.

12. The arbitrator's ruling.

Following any arbitration merits hearing, You and the Company will have the right to submit post-hearing briefs to the appointed arbitrator. The appointed arbitrator may award either Party any individual remedy that otherwise would have been available to the Party under applicable law. The appointed arbitrator must issue an award in writing on any dispositive motion and/or on the merits, which includes a written, reasoned statement of decision with findings of fact and conclusions of law. Judgment may be entered on the award as confirmed by a court of competent jurisdiction, and to the extent permitted by law, any party has the right to seek to vacate or appeal the appointed arbitrator's award to a court of competent jurisdiction.

13. Confidential proceedings.

Unless otherwise prohibited under applicable law, the proceedings pursuant to this DRP shall be confidential, except disclosures are permitted (a) to a Party's spouse or professional legal, tax or accounting representative, and even as to such a person, only if the person is informed of and agrees to honor this confidentiality requirement, or (b) to the extent necessary to seek relief as outlined in this DRP or in a court of competent jurisdiction.

14. Costs of arbitration.

You and the Company will pay your own respective costs and attorneys' fees incurred in connection with the arbitration of the Covered Disputes, subject to any remedies to which either Party may later be entitled under applicable law. For Covered Disputes in which you are seeking affirmative relief, you shall be required to pay your portion of filing fees pursuant to CPR's fee structure for Administered Employment Arbitration (and, if relevant, CPR's fee structure for arbitrations subject to the Protocol). CPR's fee structure can be found at <https://drs.cpradr.org/services/pricing-fees>. Company will otherwise pay up to all of the arbitration forum costs (including arbitrator fees), as apportioned by the arbitrator or as otherwise required in accordance with applicable law. Any dispute over the payment or apportionment of the arbitration forum costs (including arbitrator fees) is a Covered Dispute that must be resolved only by the appointed arbitrator. Any arbitrator fees and/or arbitration costs that are imposed on the Company with respect to proceedings under the DRP are due 30 days after Company's receipt of the invoice from the DRS Provider, except that, in the event of any arbitration hearing fee deposit, no such fee deposit shall be due any sooner than 45 days prior to the first scheduled day of the merits hearing. In the event there is a good faith dispute over proper payment or apportionment of any arbitration-related fees, the Parties agree that any payment delay from resolving the arbitration fee dispute shall not be a waiver of the right to arbitrate under this DRP.

15. Governing law.

The Parties agree that Company is engaged in transactions involving interstate commerce, and that this DRP and any arbitration proceedings held pursuant to this DRP, as well as any court or other proceedings concerning arbitration under this DRP are expressly subject to and governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. section 1 et seq. (the "FAA").

16. Opting-out of the DRP.

The DRP is not a condition of employment. Within 30 calendar days after the date You have received notice or a copy of this DRP (the "Opt-Out Deadline"), You can choose to opt out of being bound by this DRP. You are free to choose and consult with an attorney and/or other advisor about this DRP. If You decide to opt-out, you must submit a written notice to Company, which includes: (i) your name, mailing address, phone number, email address, and your Employee Identification Number or other unique identifier used by Company (if any); (ii) a statement that You are opting out of this DRP; and (iii) your signature and the date thereof (an "Opt-Out Notice"). The Opt-Out Notice must be sent via email to employeearbitrationoptout@realpage.com and received by the Company on or by the Opt-Out Deadline. A Covered Individual who opts out of the DRP is advised that the Covered Individual must maintain a copy of all communications sent by the Covered Individual to Company sufficient to establish Covered Individual's timely delivery of the Opt-Out Notice. In the event of any dispute regarding an Opt-Out Notice, the Covered Individual will have the burden of proving that the Covered Individual timely sent the Opt-Out Notice by producing such records, as applicable. If You do not comply with these requirements for opting out and/or proving such an election was made, You will be deemed to have irrevocably agreed to be bound by all of this DRP's provisions.

17. Retaliation is prohibited.

Company does not tolerate, and strictly prohibits, any form of retaliation against You for filing administrative charges and complaints, pursuing or opposing resolution of any Covered Disputes under this DRP, or opting out of the DRP.

18. Employment at-will status.

Nothing in this DRP guarantees employment or changes the at-will employment status of any Covered Individual, which can only be changed by written agreement of the Parties.

19. DRP modification/termination.

This DRP is the full and complete policy and agreement between You and the Company relating to the formal resolution of Covered Disputes. This DRP shall be construed as a whole, according to its fair meaning, and not for or against either Party. It may not be modified or terminated except in writing by Company giving reasonable advance written or electronic notice to Covered Individuals of a modification or termination of the DRP (or as otherwise permitted or required under controlling law). Any modification or termination of this DRP is prospective only and will not apply to any pending arbitration initiated under the DRP.

20. Severability of invalid or unenforceable provisions and stay of non-arbitrable claims.

If any provision of this DRP is held or ruled to be invalid or unenforceable under applicable law including, without limitation, any portion of Paragraph 11 pertaining to Representative Actions (including, without limitation, PAGA actions), then the invalid or unenforceable provision or portion of the provision will be severed from this DRP, and the remainder of the DRP will not be affected and shall otherwise be enforced to give broad effect to the Parties' agreement to participate and resolve Covered Disputes in individual arbitration. In the event that a Party asserts any claims that are deemed not arbitrable by federal law or a court of competent jurisdiction ("Non-Arbitrable Claims") while at the same time asserting claims against the other Party that are Covered Disputes subject to the DRP, the Parties consent to and agree that the litigation of the Non-Arbitrable Claims (including, without limitation, any non-individual, representative PAGA Claim) in any state or federal judicial forum shall be stayed pending resolution of the Covered Disputes that are otherwise subject to the DRP to the maximum extent permitted by law.

21. No waiver.

The failure to require any Covered Individual's performance of any provision of this DRP shall not affect Company's right thereafter to enforce the same against that or any other Covered Individual.

22. Signatures on DRP are not required.

No signatures are needed by Company and/or You as a manifestation of any agreement to be bound by the terms and provisions of this DRP. The issuance of this DRP is deemed to be Company's acceptance of and agreement to be bound by its terms, and unless You properly opt-out of this DRP, the application for or continuation of employment with Company by You following actual or constructive notice or knowledge of this DRP is deemed acceptance of and agreement to be bound by all of its terms and provisions.

23. Participation in government proceedings.

You retain the right to (1) report any good faith allegation of unlawful employment practices or criminal conduct to any appropriate federal, State, or local government agency or official; (2) participate in a proceeding with any appropriate federal, State or local government agency enforcing discrimination laws; (3) make truthful statements or disclosures required by law, regulation or legal process (including, without limitation, by providing testimony pursuant to a court order, subpoena, or written request from an administrative agency or legislative body); and (4) request or receive confidential legal advice.

¹ For purposes of this DRP, "RealPage" is defined to include, without limitation, all of the following affiliates, divisions and entities: RealPage, Inc., Multifamily Internet Ventures LLC, NovelPay LLC, WhiteSky Communications LLC, RP On-Site LLC, Buildium, LLC, Stratis IoT, Inc., RealPage Payments Services LLC, DepositIQ and RentersIQ Insurance Agency, LLC, ClickPay Services, Inc., Modern Message Inc., Chirp Systems, Inc., RealPage Utility Management Inc., RealPage Payment Processing Services, Inc., Knock, Inc., or Propertyware LLC.

² Information about any Class/Collective Actions or PAGA Representative Actions now pending can be requested in writing from RealPage's Legal Department by sending an email to legal@realpage.com.

³ If CPR ceases to provide dispute resolution services or is otherwise unable to serve as the DRS Provider as outlined herein, the Parties shall mutually agree on the selection of an alternative DRS Provider. If the Parties cannot agree, the matter shall be resolved by a court of competent jurisdiction.

TIME OFF/LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Paid Time Off

RealPage recognizes and supports the fact that employees need to maintain a balance between professional and personal needs. Employees are encouraged to schedule and take time off each calendar year to promote good physical and mental health. In addition to paid time off for certain national holidays, RealPage provides regular, full-time employees with paid time off (“PTO”) for vacation, illness and other personal needs. RealPage also provides time off for other reasons, including compassionate leave, military service, jury duty, voting, etc.

Nonexempt Paid Time Off

Regular, full-time nonexempt (hourly) employees are eligible to accrue Paid Time Off “PTO” under the following guidelines:

- Full-time, nonexempt employees will begin accruing PTO on a per pay period basis (biweekly) each year beginning on Jan. 1, and ending on Dec. 31, based on years of service (see accrual schedule below).
- Part-time employees are not eligible to accrue PTO.
- PTO should be taken in the year in which it is accrued. PTO that is not used in the year it is accrued will expire and not carry over to the next year, except where required by state law.
- Employees living in states that require unused PTO to carry over to the next year are eligible to continue accruing PTO until they reach the applicable maximum accrual, according to the schedule below. Once the maximum accrual is reached, PTO will stop accruing until PTO is used (ex. 4 years of service accrues PTO at 5.54 hours per pay period. PTO will stop accruing when the total accrued hours reaches 144 hours).
- Employees living in California only are eligible to continue accruing PTO until they reach 1.5x the standard maximum accrual for their years of service, as outlined below. Once California employees reach 1.5x the standard maximum accrual, PTO will stop accruing until PTO is used (ex. 4 years of service accrues PTO at 5.54 hours per pay period. PTO will stop accruing when the total accrued hours reaches 216 hours).
- PTO cannot be used at the end of a resignation period unless approved by your manager and HR, in limited cases.
- Employees that begin employment after Jan. 1, will begin accruing PTO on their first day of employment on a prorated basis from hire date through the end of the year.
- Employees that have a service anniversary will begin accruing PTO at the higher rate according to the schedule below, during the pay period in which the anniversary occurs, on a prorated basis through the end of the year.
- PTO is not considered time worked for the purposes of determining whether overtime pay is required.

Nonexempt PTO Accrual Schedule:

Years of Service	Hours Accrued Per Pay Period	Maximum Accrual
0 - < 3	4.62	120
3 - < 5	5.54	144
5 - < 8	6.46	168
8+	7.07	184

Accrual of PTO while on leave of absence

Nonexempt employees will accrue PTO while on the Company paid portion of an approved leave of absence. Company paid leave includes PTO, sick time and RealPage Parental Leave payments. PTO will not accrue while on the non-Company paid portion of a leave, including while the employee is receiving any STD/LTD payments from New York Life or state provided family/medical leave payments.

Borrowing PTO

Nonexempt employees may request to “borrow” PTO no more than 40 hours per calendar year. PTO cannot be borrowed from the next calendar year. Time borrowed will be considered an advance on wages and if the employee leaves the Company having taken more PTO than accrued, the employee may be required to repay RealPage for used, unaccrued PTO. Employees must be in good standing and meeting performance expectations to borrow PTO.

Exempt/salaried PTO policy:

Regular, full-time exempt employees are eligible for “Take-What-You-Need” PTO under the following guidelines:

- Full-time exempt employees do not accrue PTO, rather are eligible for paid time off with advance manager approval
- Absences lasting more than five consecutive days may fall under the RealPage Leave of Absence policy
- Employees must be meeting performance expectations and ensure that the needs of the business are being met when requesting time away from work
- The success of this policy depends largely on open communication with your manager, consideration of other team members and ownership of job responsibilities
- Time off exceeding two consecutive weeks is strongly discouraged

- Part-time exempt employees are not eligible for this policy
- Sick time and floating holidays are included in this policy (unless state/ local law requires separate bank)
- Since exempt employees do not accrue PTO, there is nothing to pay out upon leaving the Company
- The ability to take paid time off is not a form of additional wages for services performed but is part of RealPage's dedication to providing a flexible working environment and maintaining a balance between professional and personal needs
- PTO cannot be used after resignation notice is given

Scheduling PTO

Generally, scheduled PTO may be taken at any time during the calendar year. PTO requests should be submitted by the employee in advance and require the approval of the employee's manager. All PTO must be scheduled at mutually acceptable times. Employees should be in good standing and meeting performance expectations.

Paid Time off for illness/sick time

- Nonexempt full-time employees will begin each year with five sick days on Jan. 1, and these days will not rollover to the following year, unless required by law.
- Nonexempt employees may use sick time in one-hour increments.
- Sick time is not considered time worked in the calculation of overtime pay.
- For Exempt employees, paid sick time is included in the Exempt "Take-What-You-Need" policy, unless required by law to be in a separate accrual bank; unplanned absences lasting more than five consecutive days may fall under the RealPage Leave of Absence policy.

If an employee is unable to work due to unplanned medical reasons, the employee must notify their manager at or before the beginning of the scheduled shift for the first day of the absence and for each subsequent day. The option for a leave of absence should be examined when an employee has missed or will miss five or more days of work for personal medical reasons. Leaves@realpage.com should be notified as soon as possible when an employee has been out of work due to injury or illness for more than five days or has an upcoming medical procedure that will place them out of work for more than five days. Failure to abide by RealPage's leave policies or excessive absenteeism for which either paid or unpaid time was taken may result in disciplinary or corrective action up to and including termination. Employees will not be disciplined, evaluated less favorably or otherwise penalized for using PTO in connection with leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act, an approved accommodation for a qualifying disability under the ADA, or otherwise protected by law.

The Company may require an employee to submit a physician's note setting forth the date and time of treatment and/or a physician's release to return to work if the employee:

- Is absent due to a contagious disease, serious illness, and/or injury
- Has used sick time in an abusive manner, or in an unacceptable pattern
- Has been absent for five consecutive business days due to personal illness or injury

If a nonexempt employee does not have sufficient sick time available to cover an absence necessitated by illness, PTO must be applied before taking unpaid time off. With management approval, as an accommodation, an employee may be excused from work on an unpaid basis to allow for an illness. If an employee exhausts PTO and/or sick prior to the end of the year, no additional paid time will be issued.

Unused PTO at termination

Nonexempt employees who leave RealPage will not be paid for accrued but unused PTO and/or sick time, unless required by state law. PTO cannot be used after resignation notice is given. Exempt employees will not be paid PTO upon termination, as they do not accrue PTO.

Holiday Pay

All active, full-time, regular employees are eligible for holiday pay. Employees on leaves of absence are eligible for holiday pay if the holiday falls within one week of the effective leave date.

Holiday pay equals eight hours, regardless of assigned shift length. Nonexempt employees working on a designated holiday will receive eight hours of holiday pay at their regular rate of pay in addition to any hours worked at their regular rate of pay.

Holidays

The Company recognizes the following eight paid holidays each calendar year:

- New Year's Day
- Memorial Day
- Independence Day
- Labor Day
- Thanksgiving Day
- The day following Thanksgiving
- Christmas Eve
- Christmas Day

Generally, a holiday falling on a Saturday will be observed the preceding Friday, while a holiday falling on a Sunday will be observed the following Monday. As a result, while the number of recognized holidays remains the same, the number of paid holidays occurring in a given year may vary. Please ask your manager for department specific schedules.

Family and Medical Leave (FMLA) and Leave of Absence Policy

RealPage provides leave according to the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA), which provides job-protected leave to covered employees in certain circumstances.

Eligibility

To qualify for FMLA leave, you must have: (1) worked for RealPage for at least 12 months, though it need not be consecutive; and (2) worked at least 1,250 hours in the last 12 months. If you have any questions about your eligibility for FMLA leave, please contact the Leaves Department at Leaves@realpage.com.

Guidelines/policy

If eligible, employees may take up to 12 weeks of family or medical leave or 26 weeks of military caregiver leave, within the relevant 12-month period defined below. The leave may be paid, unpaid or a combination, depending on the circumstances of the leave as specified in this policy. Upon returning from approved FMLA leave, you have the right to be restored to the same job or an equivalent position, subject to the terms, limitations and exceptions provided by law.

Leave entitlement

You may take up to 12 weeks of FMLA leave in a 12-month period, using a “rolling” method that is measured backward from the date you use any FMLA leave for any of the following reasons:

- The birth of a child and in order to care for such child (leave to be completed within one year of the child's birth)
- The placement of a child with you for adoption or foster care and in order to care for the newly placed child (leave to be completed within one year of the child's placement)
- To care for a spouse, child or parent with a serious health condition
- Your own serious health condition, which makes you unable to perform the functions of your position
- A qualifying exigency arising from the fact that your spouse, child or parent is a military member on covered active duty (or has been notified of an impending call or order to covered active duty)

You may take up to 26 weeks of FMLA leave in a single 12-month period, beginning on the first day that you take FMLA leave to care for a spouse, child, parent or next of kin who is a covered service member and who has a serious injury or illness related to active duty service, as defined by the FMLA's regulations (known as military caregiver leave).

Both spouses employed by RealPage

Spouses who are both employed by RealPage and eligible for FMLA and/or other state leave allowances may be limited to a combined total of 26 weeks in a single 12-month period if the leave is either for:

- Military caregiver leave
- A combination of military caregiver leave and leave for other FMLA-qualifying reasons

Leave of absence process

RealPage Leaves Department, in partnership with New York Life, is the administrator of the Leave of Absence process. To initiate a Leave of Absence, contact Leaves@realpage.com or New York Life at 888-842-4462.

When the need for the leave is foreseeable, the employee must submit the request at least 30 days prior to taking the leave. When an employee becomes aware of a need for a leave of absence fewer than 30 days in advance, the employee must provide notice as soon as possible under the circumstances.

Contact your manager, New York Life and the Leaves Department with any changes to your leave of absence or return to work status.

Additionally, if you are planning a medical procedure, a series of medical treatments, or taking caregiver leave, you must consult with your manager to work out a schedule that best suits the needs of both the employee and RealPage. Contact Leaves@realpage.com to initiate a leave of absence.

Certification of need for leave

If you are requesting leave because of your own or a covered relation's serious health condition, you and the relevant health care provider must supply appropriate medical certification. Employees must contact New York Life at 1-888-842-4462 or Leaves@realpage.com to initiate a leave of absence. When you request leave, New York Life will notify you of the requirement for medical certification and of the date which certification is due. Failure to provide requested medical certification within the designated timeframe may result in denial of leave. RealPage, at its expense, may require an examination by a second health care provider designated by RealPage. If the second health care provider's opinion conflicts with the original medical certification, RealPage, at its expense, may require a third, mutually agreeable, health care provider to conduct an examination and provide a final and binding opinion.

RealPage also reserves the right to require certification from a covered military member's health care provider if you are requesting military caregiver leave and certification in connection with military exigency leave.

Reporting while on leave

While on leave of absence, you must keep the RealPage Leaves Department and New York Life updated on any changes to your leave status and your intention to return to work. In addition, you must give notice as soon as possible if the dates of leave change, are extended, or were initially unknown.

Recertification

The Company may request recertification for the serious health condition of the employee or the employee's family member when circumstances have changed significantly, if the employer receives information casting doubt on the reason given for the absence, or if the employee seeks an extension of their leave. Otherwise, the Company may request recertification for the serious health condition of the employee or the employee's family member every six months in connection with an FMLA absence.

Pay during disability leave

Full-time employees may qualify for full or partial income replacement during an approved leave of absence occasioned by disability. Income replacement may be provided under the Short-Term Disability Policy (STD) or, if your illness extends beyond 180 days, under Long-Term Disability (LTD) .

The first five days of disability leave is an unpaid "waiting/elimination" period. Available PTO will be applied to the unpaid five-day waiting period. This time is considered part of the leave for FMLA calculation purposes.

Using income replacement during the approved FMLA leave does not extend the 12 or 26 weeks (whichever is applicable) of the FMLA leave period. In no case can income replacement used during the approved leave result in your receipt of more than 100% of your salary. FMLA leave runs concurrently with any state-provided leave.

Benefits and premiums during leave

During an approved leave, RealPage will maintain the employee's health benefits as if the employee continued to be actively employed. During the unpaid portion of the employee's leave, premiums will continue to be paid by the Company. Upon return, and as permitted by state law, premiums will be collected by doubling premium deductions until the missed amount is recouped. If the employee does not return from leave, the missed premiums will be collected in a lump sum via invoice from the Company. Failure to repay premiums may result in benefits being canceled retro to leave start date.

Exemption for key employees

Key employees, defined as salaried and FMLA-eligible employees who are among the highest paid 10% of all employees at a worksite or within 75 miles of that worksite, may not be returned to their former or an equivalent position following FMLA leave if restoration of employment will cause substantial and serious economic injury to the operations of RealPage. This fact-specific determination will be made by RealPage on a case-by-case basis. RealPage will notify you if you qualify as a key employee, if RealPage intends to deny reinstatement and of your rights in such instances.

Intermittent and reduced schedule leave

FMLA leave may be taken intermittently (in separate blocks of time) or on a reduced work schedule (reducing the usual number of hours you work per workweek or workday).

If the intermittent or reduced schedule leave is unpaid, RealPage will reduce your pay to reflect the amount of time you actually work. If you are an exempt employee, you may be required to log your hours worked into UKG during the period of intermittent leave and have your pay adjusted accordingly, however, this will not change your exempt status. While you are on an intermittent or reduced schedule leave, RealPage may temporarily transfer you to an available alternative position that better accommodates your leave schedule and has equivalent pay and benefits.

Intent to return to work from FMLA leave

The Company requires an employee on FMLA leave to report periodically on the employee's status and intent to return to work. Should an employee fail to return to work as scheduled from approved leave within 24 hours without proper notice, it will be considered a voluntary resignation of employment.

Paid Parental Leave Policy

As described above, employees are eligible to take a leave of absence from work due to the birth, adoption or placement of a child under the FMLA and ADA, as amended. The Paid Parental Leave Policy works in conjunction with FMLA, ADA and state regulations to provide employees with paid time off in the 12-month period following the birth or placement of a child. The purpose of parental leave is to enable the employee to care for and bond with a newborn, newly adopted or newly placed child. Paid Parental Leave is independent of, and in addition to, the six weeks of Pregnancy Leave available to birthing parents immediately following childbirth, as discussed further below. This policy applies to births, adoptions or placements that occurred on or after Jan. 1, 2023.

Please also refer to the FMLA and Leave of Absence Policy section of the Employee Handbook for further information regarding employee benefits under FMLA, ADA and STD.

Parental Leave

RealPage, Inc., will provide all full-time, regular employees, up to six weeks of paid leave compensated at 100% of their weekly rate of base pay during the 12-month period immediately following the birth of an employee's child or the placement of a child with an employee in connection with adoption or foster care. Paid Parental Leave will run concurrently with any other state leave benefits and will not result in over 100% of your weekly base pay. Parental leave can be taken in no less than 14 calendar day increments. Advanced notice is required for parental leave taken in increments and is subject to manager approval based on business needs.

Requesting Parental Leave

RealPage Benefits, in partnership with New York Life, is the administrator of the Leave of Absence process. To initiate a parental leave, contact leaves@realpage.com or New York Life at 888-842-4462. Additional instructions for filing a leave can be found via the RealPage Portal. Employees must provide at least 30 days' notice of the requested leave (or as much notice as practicable if the leave is not foreseeable).

Eligibility

All Regular, full-time employees in the U.S. who are scheduled to work 30 or more standard hours per week are eligible three months after date of hire.

Employees must meet the following criteria:

- Be a full-time, regular employee at the time leave begins (temporary and part-time employees are not eligible for this benefit)
- Be a parent of a newly born or newly adopted child or a foster child who has been newly placed in employee's home (in either case, the child must be age 17 or younger)
- The adoption of a stepchild is excluded from this policy

Eligible employees will receive a maximum of six weeks of Parental Leave for the birth, adoption or placement of a child/children. A multiple birth, adoption or placement occurs (e.g., the birth of twins or adoption of siblings) will not increase the total amount of Parental Leave granted for that event. In addition, in no case will an employee receive more than six weeks of Parental Leave in a rolling 12-month period, regardless of whether more than one birth, adoption or foster care placement event occurs within that 12-month time frame.

When both parents are RealPage employees who meet eligibility guidelines, each parent is entitled to six weeks of Parental Leave.

Additional information:

- Employees must take Parental Leave in no less than 14 calendar day increments
- Employees must use all Parental Leave during the 12-months following the event or any remaining time will be forfeited
- Upon separation of the individual's employment, the employee will not be paid for any unused Parental Leave for which they were eligible

Coordination With Other Policies

Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA)

- Parental Leave taken under this policy will run concurrently with leave under FMLA
- The leave will be counted toward the 12 weeks of available FMLA leave per a 12-month period
- All other requirements and provisions under the FMLA will apply
- An employee who takes Parental Leave who does not qualify for FMLA leave will be granted the same level of job protection as if the employee were on FMLA-qualifying leave

Pregnancy Leave

- Full-time, regular employees who give birth to a child are entitled to six weeks of Pregnancy Leave, which runs concurrently with FMLA, immediately following childbirth. To be eligible for Pregnancy Leave, an employee must meet the requirements to receive STD payments under RealPage's STD policy and provide appropriate verification and documentation to RealPage and the Company's third-party STD carrier.
- Employees who are eligible for Pregnancy Leave will receive 100% of their weekly base pay for six weeks regardless of birth type. The first week of Pregnancy Leave will be compensated by RealPage; beginning the second week of Pregnancy Leave, employees will be compensated through STD.
- Paid Parental Leave may begin at the conclusion of Pregnancy Leave and will be offset by any additional state provided benefits. In no event will compensation for employees on Pregnancy Leave or Paid Parental Leave exceed 100% of weekly base pay.
- STD payments will be made at 100% of weekly base pay for six weeks regardless of birth type.

Employee benefits while on leave

- The Company will maintain all benefits for employees during Parental Leave period just as if they were taking PTO
- Missed benefit premiums will be made up by taking double deductions until caught up upon return
- PTO will continue to accrue during Parental Leave
- Scheduled holidays will not extend the total Parental Leave entitlement

Employees should contact leaves@realpage.com for instructions on the parental leave process.

Military Leave of Absence

RealPage recognizes that employees may need to be absent from work to serve in the U.S. military or National Guard. RealPage provides military service leaves of absence to all regular full-time, part-time and probationary employees in compliance with the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA), and other applicable state laws. RealPage is committed to protecting the job rights of employees absent on military leave. In accordance with federal and state law, it is RealPage's policy that no employee or prospective employee will be subjected to any form of discrimination based on that person's membership in or obligation to perform service for any of the Uniformed Services of the United States. Specifically, no person will be denied employment, reemployment, promotion or other benefit of employment because of such membership. Furthermore, no person will be subjected to retaliation or adverse employment action because such person has exercised their rights under applicable law or this policy. If any employee believes that they have been subjected to discrimination in violation of this policy, the employee should immediately contact the Human Resources leader.

Policy:

The Leaves Department is responsible for the administration of this policy. If you have any questions about military service leave, please contact Leaves@realpage.com.

Procedures for military leave

1. An employee should provide RealPage with notice of the need for leave 30 days prior to departure or as far in advance as is reasonable under the circumstances. Written notice is preferred, but not required under the law or this policy.
2. To request a temporary or extended military leave of absence, the employee should contact their manager, Human Resources and the Leaves Department to notify them of the leave and provide them with a copy of the military order.
3. When the employee intends to return to work, they must make an application for reemployment to Human Resources within the time periods set forth in the Military Leave of Absence Policy.
4. Military leave is typically unpaid. However, upon an employee's return to work following a leave of absence under this policy, if an employee's gross weekly earnings while in service fell short of their weekly base pay (excluding commissions, bonus and other variable pay) at the Company prior to the initiation of their leave, the Company will provide supplemental pay equal to the difference between the employee's Company pay and the employee's pay while in service for up to twelve weeks following their return to work (thus making the employee whole for the first twelve weeks of their leave of absence). To qualify for supplemental pay, an employee must submit a request to the Leaves Department at the initiation of their leave, and, upon return, provide pay stubs or other appropriate documentation to confirm the amount of their pay while in service.
5. If the employee does not return to work, the supervisor must notify Human Resources so that appropriate action may be taken.

Eligibility requirements

Regular full-time and part-time employees are eligible for military service leave if they are absent from work for eligible military service.

Military service

For purposes of this policy, eligible military service means certain types of service (listed below) in the following branches of the U.S. military:

- Armed Forces (Army, Navy, Air Force, Space Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard), including the Reserves
- National Guard, including the Army National Guard and Air National Guard, when the employee is engaged under federal authority in active duty for training, inactive duty training or full-time National Guard duty
- Commissioned corps of the Public Health Service
- Any other category of persons designated by the President in time of war or national emergency

Eligible employees may take leave under this policy for the following types of military service:

- Active duty
- Active duty for training
- Initial active duty for training
- Inactive duty training
- Full-time National Guard duty
- Submitting to an examination to determine your fitness for any of these services
- Funeral honors duty performed by National Guard or Reserve members
- Service as an intermittent disaster response appointee of the National Disaster Medical System when you are:
 - activated under federal authority; or
 - attending authorized training in support of a federal mission

Compensation during leave

Military service leave is unpaid. However, employees may use any or all their accrued but unused paid time off during their military service leave.

Benefits during leave

During Military Service leave, premiums will continue to be paid by the Company. Upon return, premiums will be collected by doubling premium deductions until the missed amount is recouped. If the employee does not return from leave, the missed premiums will be collected in a lump sum via invoice from the Company. Failure to repay premiums may result in benefits being canceled retro to leave start date.

Reemployment

You may be eligible for reemployment under USERRA after your military service leave. To return to work, you must report to work or apply for reemployment to the Leaves Department, including your military discharge documentation, if available, as follows:

- If your military service was for less than 31 days, you must report to work on the first regularly scheduled workday that is at least eight hours after you return home from military service
- If your military service was for 31 to 180 days, you must apply for reemployment within 14 days following completion of military service
- If your military service was for more than 180 days, you must apply for reemployment within 90 days following completion of military service

Nothing in this policy requires RealPage to reemploy individuals who are not eligible for reemployment rights under applicable law.

Seniority rights after reemployment

If you are eligible for reemployment, you will be reemployed with the same seniority, and all rights and benefits based on that seniority, that you would have attained if you had not taken military leave. Seniority rights include pay and benefits that accrue or are determined based on your length of service.

Personal Leave of Absence

Employees who require time off in addition to time provided by the Company's paid and unpaid time-off policies may request a personal leave of absence. Personal leaves of absence must not exceed 30 days. An extension may be approved in limited circumstances.

All regular employees employed for a minimum of 90 days are eligible to apply for an unpaid personal leave of absence. Job performance, absenteeism and departmental requirements will all be taken into consideration before a request is approved. Personal leave requests are subject to manager and HR approval based upon the needs of the business.

The employee must return to work on the scheduled return date or will be considered to have voluntarily resigned from their employment. Extensions of leave will be considered on a case-by-case basis. Please contact Leaves@realpage.com for more information on request procedures.

Compassionate Leave

RealPage offers compassionate leave to active, regular, full-time employees after the loss of an immediate family member. The employee's immediate manager authorizes the use of compassionate leave. Employees may take up to five days of paid leave for a death in the immediate family, which includes (but is not limited to) spouse/partner, child, mother, father, sister, brother, mother/father-in-law, brother/sister-in-law, grandparent/grandparent-in-law, aunt or uncle, or legal guardian. Both birthing and non-birthing parents are eligible for compassionate leave following the loss of a pregnancy or unborn child. Compassionate leave for relations not mentioned above may be approved at management/HR discretion. If additional time is needed, PTO or unpaid personal leave may be taken with Manager and HR approval. Management may require documentation related to a request.

Compassionate time is not considered time worked in the calculation of overtime pay.

Loss of Pet

RealPage also offers up to two days of paid leave for employees grieving the loss of pet. Leave related to the loss of a pet is limited to two days per calendar year.

Jury Duty

To provide income protection while an employee carries out their civic responsibility, RealPage provides jury duty pay. Active, regular, full-time employees are eligible for approved jury duty pay. Other employees, including those on a leave of absence, are not eligible.

Rate of pay

- Eligible employees will receive time off for jury duty and will be paid for days of work missed (up to five days or required by the state) at the employee's current rate of base pay
- Jury pay will not be deducted from an employee's pay
- Jury duty is not considered as time worked in the calculation of overtime pay

Process

- An employee must notify their manager within three business days of receiving a notice to report for jury duty and must present a copy of the jury summons
- If an employee is selected to participate in an actual jury, the employee must keep their manager advised of the jury status daily unless other arrangements are made in advance with the manager
- An employee must return to work on the date of release from jury duty unless the release is after noon; in that case, the employee must return to work on the next scheduled business day
- Nonexempt employees should record time off related to Jury Duty in UKG under Time and Attendance

Time Off to Vote

All employees should be able to vote either in early voting, where available, or before or after regularly assigned work hours. However, when this is not possible due to work schedules, employees will receive up to three hours during the workday to vote, or time off as required by applicable state or local law, whichever is shortest. Time off for voting should be reported and coded appropriately on timekeeping records.

Lactation/Breastfeeding

After a child's birth, any employee who is breastfeeding their child will be provided reasonable break times as needed to express breast milk for their baby. RealPage has designated rooms for this purpose or will make one available if needed. For nonexempt employees, breaks of more than 30 minutes in length will be unpaid, and the employee should indicate this break period on their time record.

COMPENSATION

Payment of Wages

RealPage is committed to paying our employees a fair and equitable wage. RealPage complies with wage and hour regulations, which may vary by state.

Exempt/salaried employees are paid semimonthly (on the fifteenth and last weekday of the month) and nonexempt or hourly employees are paid every other Friday and one week in arrears, which will include any applicable overtime wages. Note: Exact dates may vary and are dependent on dates of each month.

All employees are required to sign up for direct deposit, except where prohibited by state or local law. If you have questions about this policy or its applicability in your jurisdiction, please contact payroll at payroll@realpage.com.

If an employee's marital status changes or the number of exemptions previously claimed increases or decreases, the employee is obligated to make this change in the HRIS system by revising their W-4 form.

Any requests for timecard or PTO adjustments should be completed by the Manager and forwarded by the employee's manager to Payroll@realpage.com for filing (backup).

If you have any questions, problems, or issues with accurately reporting your time worked, please contact Payroll or HRIS.

Time Reporting

The workday is defined as the 24-hour period starting at 12:00 am and ending at 11:59 pm; the workweek covers seven consecutive days beginning on Sunday and ending on Saturday, and the usual workweek period is 40 hours unless dictated by state or local laws.

RealPage is committed to ensuring that all employees are paid correctly in accordance with federal, state, and local laws and Company policies and procedures.

All nonexempt employees must accurately record all time worked. Failure to accurately record the time worked may lead to discipline up to and including termination.

To ensure that nonexempt employees are paid for all hours worked, nonexempt employees must record all time worked by clocking in and out using the Company's timekeeping system and clock in and out for meal periods. This includes any time worked while away from the office, including but not limited to checking Company email, making work-related telephone calls, or generating sales leads off-premises. Any edits, additions or deletions to an employee's time records must be approved by the appropriate management personnel.

In addition, you must obtain approval from your manager before working outside of your scheduled shifts. Nonexempt employees who work overtime that is not preapproved will be subject to discipline, up to and including termination. No nonexempt employee may be asked by a RealPage manager to work time off the clock or to volunteer for unpaid work, and no RealPage manager may edit a timecard to remove time that was worked by a nonexempt employee. If this occurs, or if you otherwise have worked time for which you have not been paid, please contact Payroll or the Human Resources department.

RealPage does not permit improper or unauthorized deductions from employees' salaries unless the deduction is in compliance with federal and/or state tax laws, the employee has authorized the deduction, or the Fair Labor Standards Act specifically permits the deduction. Any employee who believes that their salary has been improperly reduced or subject to improper deductions should notify Payroll or your Human Resources Business Partner.

Meal/Rest Periods

RealPage complies with all applicable federal, state and local laws providing for meal and rest breaks.

Mandatory meal period

Employee meal periods are important to Company productivity and employee health. Employees in jurisdictions where meal breaks are mandated by law, and all nonexempt employees, regardless of location, are required to take a meal break of no less than 30-minutes on any day they are scheduled to work five or more consecutive hours. Employees must begin their meal period prior to the end of the fifth hour of work. A second meal period may also be provided, based on local and state requirements, for shifts exceeding a certain length. It is the employee's responsibility to let their leaders know if they are unable to take a compliant break. Nonexempt employees must clock out prior to leaving for a meal break and clock in when returning.

Employees must be relieved of all work duties for the duration of their meal periods. Bona fide, off-duty meal periods are not compensable and will not be included as hours worked for purposes of overtime for nonexempt employees. Nonexempt employees are required to take a meal break and must not perform any job duties while on a meal break.

Exempt employees in jurisdictions where meal breaks are not mandated by law will also be provided with the opportunity for meal breaks but are not required to take a meal period if they prefer not to do so or to adhere to the scheduling criteria outlined above.

Rest periods

Nonexempt employees are provided a fifteen-minute rest period for every four hours of work, unless stated differently by applicable law. Nonexempt employees on rest periods are not required to clock in and clock out because this time is considered “time worked” and is compensable.

Impermissible use of meal period and/or rest periods

Neither meal periods nor rest periods may be used to account for an employee’s late arrival or early departure or to cover time off for other purposes. For example, rest periods may not be accumulated to extend a meal period, and rest breaks may not be combined to allow one half-hour long break.

Overtime Pay (Nonexempt Employees)

Overtime is defined as hours worked by an hourly (or nonexempt) employee more than 40 hours in a workweek and will be compensated at 1.5x your rate of pay, unless otherwise required by state or local law.

Some jurisdictions also require overtime pay if an employee works beyond a certain number of hours in a day or require that overtime beyond a certain number of hours be compensated at higher rate. RealPage complies with these requirements, where applicable, and pays its nonexempt employees overtime in accordance with all federal, state and local laws.

Overtime must be approved in advance by the manager to whom the employee reports. RealPage pays nonexempt employees for all hours worked, even overtime that is not preapproved; however, nonexempt employees who work overtime that is not preapproved may be subject to discipline, up to and including termination.

- Nonexempt employees must submit accurate time records reflecting their hours worked. All-time records are submitted weekly by the employee and then approved by the employee’s manager.
- Paid leave, such as floating holiday/holiday, sick, or vacation pay, does not apply toward time worked.
- During busy periods employees may be required to work overtime hours.
- The regular rate of pay for purposes of calculating employees’ overtime compensation includes base, incentive compensation, and other compensation as required by applicable federal, state and local laws.

On-Call Pay (Nonexempt Employees)

An on-call employee who is off Company premises and is called back to work outside their normal work schedule shall be paid for the time worked. Time worked while on call will be calculated at the employee's regular rate of pay. Overtime compensation is applicable only when total hours worked exceed 40 hours in a workweek or as required by applicable state or local laws.

Travel and Reimbursement

Employees will be reimbursed for reasonable expenses incurred in connection with approved travel on behalf of the Company in conformity with the Travel and Reimbursement policy. Please refer to the Global Travel and Expense Reimbursement Policy in UKG for more details.

Performance and Compensation Reviews

Performance evaluations are conducted on an annual cycle. The performance evaluation will be discussed, and both the employee and manager will sign the form to ensure that all strengths, areas for improvement and goals for the next review period have been clearly communicated.

Merit increases are based on Company performance and financials and are not guaranteed. A performance review does not always result in an increase in compensation. RealPage is a pay for performance organization and the employee's overall performance and compensation level, relative to their position and responsibilities, are evaluated to determine if a salary increase is warranted.

BENEFITS

Benefit Eligibility

Active, full-time employees who work 30 hours or more per week are generally eligible for benefits, subject to the terms, conditions and limitations of each benefit program and applicable law. Medical, dental and vision coverage is effective on the date of hire. The plan year runs from Jan. 1, through Dec. 31.

For more information regarding benefits, please refer to the Benefits SharePoint site.

RealPage offers a competitive benefits package which includes:

- Medical/Dental/Vision
- Health Savings Account
- Life Insurance
- Accidental Death & Dismemberment (AD&D)
- Short-Term / Long-Term Disability
- 401k
- Flexible Spending Accounts
- And More

Workers' Compensation Benefits

The Company is covered under statutory state workers' compensation laws. Employees who sustain work-related injuries must immediately notify their department supervisor and the Enterprise Risk Management team.

Tuition Assistance Benefits

RealPage supports continued development for our employees through education or acquisition of additional skills. For individuals who elect to take courses outside regular business hours, educational assistance may be available for approved courses. The courses for which reimbursement is requested must be directly related to the employee's present job or enhance their potential for advancement to a position within the Company into which the employee has a reasonable expectation of advancing. Approved course types:

- Courses towards a degree at an accredited educational institution
- Certifications for job-specific skills

Please refer to the Tuition Assistance program in UKG for more details.

Employee Assistance Program (EAP)

ComPsych® Guidance Resources® program provides confidential access to mental health, legal and financial services.

The program is available to all employees and their immediate family members living in their household.

Adoption Assistance Program

Regular, full-time employees (who are regularly scheduled to work 40 or more hours per week) may obtain up to $4,500 in reimbursement of qualified adoption expenses that are paid or incurred in connection with the final permanent adoption of an eligible child. An employee is eligible for the maximum reimbursement for each child adopted. If both adoptive parents are employees, the maximum benefit applies to limit assistance to $4,500 per child. Requests submitted more than 12 months following the date the adoption becomes final will not be considered. You must be an employee of RealPage on the date the adoption becomes final, and expenses must be incurred while an employee at RealPage.

An eligible child is defined as one under the age of 18 or physically or mentally incapable of self-care and must not be a stepchild of an eligible employee.

Qualified Adoption Expenses are actual expenses reasonably and directly related to the adoption of an Eligible Child. Some examples of eligible expenses include the following:

- Agency and placement fees (including home study fees)
- Legal fees and court costs
- Medical expenses for the adoptive child prior to placement for adoption
- Immigration, immunization and translation fees
- Counseling fees associated with placement and initial adjustment (beyond what is covered under the medical plan)
- Other expenses as determined by RealPage, consistent with the Instructions to IRS Form 8839

To apply for reimbursement, complete an Adoption Assistance Request Form and submit to benefits@realpage.com within 12 months after the date of the adoption is finalized along with receipts substantiating the expenses, and a copy of the final decree of adoption.

WORKPLACE SAFETY & HEALTH

Workplace Safety

It is the responsibility of each employee to conduct all tasks in a safe and efficient manner that complies with all local, state and federal safety and health regulations, as well as any special safety rules or guidelines applicable to the employee's work or at the employee's worksite.

Emergency Action Plan

Each facility shall post an Emergency Action Plan detailing the appropriate procedure in responding to emergencies, such as those occasioned by fire, weather-related events and medical crises.

To view your site-specific Emergency Action Plan, go to RealPage Portal to understand the protocols in place for crises, medical emergencies, fires, severe weather and other catastrophic events. It is the responsibility of each employee to be familiar with the Emergency Action Plan applicable to them and their work area.

Workplace Searches

There is no general or specific expectation of privacy in the workplace of RealPage, either on the premises of RealPage or while on duty. In general, employees should assume that what they do while on duty or on the Company premises is not private. As a rule, apart from items relating to personal hygiene or health, no employee should ever bring anything to work or store anything at work that they would not be prepared to show and possibly turn over to RealPage officials and/or law enforcement authorities.

RealPage reserves the right to conduct searches of any employee or property on Company premises. For purposes of this policy, Company premises includes, without limitation, all Company-owned or leased buildings and surrounding areas, such as sidewalks, walkways, driveways and parking lots. Employees and their belongings may also be subject to search at any time while on duty, regardless of location. Without limitation, searches may extend to employees' physical person, their work areas, cubicles, desks, purses, briefcases, baggage, toolboxes, lunch sacks, clothing, vehicles and other personal items. Searches may occur at any time, with or without the employee present.

Among other reasons, searches may be conducted to monitor compliance with rules concerning safety, security, drugs and alcohol, and possession of prohibited items. "Prohibited items" includes, but is not limited to, illegal drugs, alcoholic beverages, prescription medications not possessed in compliance with a current prescription, weapons, any items of an obscene, harassing, demeaning, or violent nature, and stolen property. Searches may be done on a random basis or based upon reasonable suspicion.

If an employee uses a locker or other storage area at work, including a locking desk drawer or locking cabinet, RealPage will either furnish the lock and keep a copy of the key or combination or else allow the employee to furnish a personal lock. However, the employee must give the Company a copy of the key or combination. Any search under this policy will be done in a manner protecting employees' privacy, confidentiality and personal dignity to the greatest extent possible. No employee will ever be physically forced to submit to a search. However, an employee who refuses to submit to a search request from the Company may face disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Drug-Free Workplace

RealPage is committed to providing a safe and productive work environment. Alcohol and drug abuse pose a threat to the health and safety of employees and to the security of our equipment and facilities. For these reasons, RealPage is committed to the elimination of drug and/or alcohol use and abuse in the workplace. This policy, which applies to all employees, outlines the practice and procedure designed to correct instances of identified alcohol and/or drug use in the workplace or during working hours.

While there are circumstances under which reasonable, responsible consumption of alcohol may be appropriate, such as Company-sponsored client or team-building events, these situations are the exception, not the rule. Remember that you are a representative of RealPage when working, traveling for business or at social events that are business related. All employees are expected to properly represent the Company at all times, even when alcohol may be present during business events or activities.

Employee assistance and drug-free awareness

Illegal drug use and alcohol misuse have adverse health and safety consequences. Information about those consequences and sources of help for drug/alcohol problems is available from the Human Resources department. Employees may also seek assistance by contacting:

- The ComPsych® GuidanceResources® program, RealPage provides confidential access to professional counseling services. The program, available to all employees and their immediate family members living in their household, someone to talk to and resources to consult whenever and wherever you need them.

RealPage will assist and support employees who voluntarily seek help for such problems before becoming subject to discipline and/or termination under this or other policies. Employees who need assistance may be allowed to use accrued paid time off, placed on a leave of absence, referred to treatment providers and otherwise accommodated as required by law.

Employees should report to work fit for duty and free of any adverse effects of illegal drugs or alcohol. This policy does not prohibit employees from the lawful use and possession of prescribed medications. Employees must, however, consult with their doctors about the medication's effect on their fitness for duty and ability to work safely and promptly disclose any work restrictions to their supervisor. Employees should not, however, disclose underlying medical conditions.

Work rules

The following work rules apply to all employees:

- Whenever employees are working, operating any Company vehicle, present on Company premises or conducting related work offsite, they are prohibited from:
 - Using, possessing, buying, selling, manufacturing or dispensing an illegal drug (including possession of drug paraphernalia)
 - Being under the influence of alcohol or an illegal drug as defined in this policy, except as outlined below
- From time-to-time alcohol may be served at business functions. All employees are expected to properly represent the Company at all times, even when alcohol may be part of business activities.
- The presence of any detectable amount of any illegal drug or illegal controlled substance in an employee's body while performing Company business or while in a Company facility is prohibited.
- RealPage will not allow any employee to perform their duties while taking prescribed drugs that are adversely affecting the employee's ability to perform their job duties safely and effectively.
- Any illegal drugs or drug paraphernalia will be turned over to an appropriate law enforcement agency and may result in criminal prosecution.
- An employee must notify RealPage in writing if they are convicted under a criminal drug statute for a violation occurring in the workplace no later than five calendar days after such conviction. Failure to provide such notice may result in an employee being subject to appropriate disciplinary action, including termination.

Required testing

The Company retains the right to require the following tests, and refusal to take the requested test(s) or refusal to sign a consent form for the required test(s) will be grounds for immediate termination.

- Preemployment: Applicants for specific roles may be required to pass a drug test before beginning work and after a conditional offer of employment is made. Refusal to submit to testing will result in revocation of the applicant's conditional offer.

- Reasonable suspicion: RealPage may ask an employee to submit to a drug and/or alcohol test whenever there is reasonable suspicion that the employee may be under the influence of drugs or alcohol, including, but not limited to, the following circumstances: evidence of drugs or alcohol on or about the employee's person or in the employee's vicinity, unusual conduct on the employee's part that suggests impairment or influence of drugs or alcohol, negative performance patterns, or excessive or unexplained absenteeism or tardiness. Human Resources must be consulted before sending an employee for reasonable suspicion testing.
- Post-accident: Employees may be subject to alcohol and drug testing when they are involved in accidents that seriously damage a Company vehicle, equipment or property and/or result in an injury to themselves or another employee that requires off-site medical attention.
- Follow-up: Employees who test positive for alcohol or an illegal substance, or otherwise violate this policy, may be subject to discipline, up to and including termination. Depending on the circumstances, RealPage may offer an employee who violates this policy or tests positive for alcohol or an illegal substance the opportunity to return to work on a last-chance basis pursuant to mutually agreeable terms, which could include follow-up drug testing at times and frequencies for a minimum of one year but not more than two years. If the employee either does not complete their rehabilitation program or tests positive after completing the rehabilitation program, they will be subject to immediate termination.

Consequences

Applicants who refuse to cooperate in a drug test or who test positive will have their conditional offer of employment revoked. Employees who refuse to cooperate in required tests or who use, possess, buy, sell, manufacture or dispense an illegal drug in violation of this policy will be subject to discipline, up to and including discharge. Employees will be paid for time spent in alcohol/drug testing and then suspended without pay pending the results of the drug/alcohol test. After the results of the test are received, a date/time will be scheduled to discuss the results of the test. Should the results prove to be negative, the employee will receive back pay for the times/days of suspension.

Confidentiality

Information and records relating to positive test results, drug and alcohol dependencies and legitimate medical explanations shall be kept confidential to the extent required by law and maintained in secure files separate from normal personnel files.

Crimes involving drugs

RealPage prohibits all employees from manufacturing, distributing, dispensing, possessing, or using an illegal drug in or on Company premises or while conducting Company business. Employees are also prohibited from misusing legally prescribed or over-the-counter (OTC) drugs in or on Company premises or while conducting Company business. Law enforcement personnel shall be notified, as appropriate, when criminal activity is suspected.

Tobacco-Free Workplace

Except in locations that have designated smoking areas outside of the building, it is the policy of RealPage to prohibit smoking, e-smoking, and/or tobacco usage on all Company premises to provide and maintain a safe and healthy work environment for all employees. According to this policy, smoking or e-smoking is defined as the act of lighting, smoking, or carrying a lighted or smoldering cigar, cigarette, e-cigarette, or pipe of any kind. Tobacco usage is inclusive of chewing tobacco or any other tobacco or nicotine products.

The smoke-free workplace policy applies to all persons in:

- All areas of Company buildings
- All Company-sponsored offsite conferences and meetings
- All vehicles owned or leased by the Company

Weapons in the Workplace

RealPage prohibits all persons on Company premises from carrying a handgun, firearm or weapon of any kind, whether concealed or open, and regardless of whether the person is licensed to carry the weapon. The only exceptions to this policy are police officers, security guards or other persons who have been given express consent by RealPage to carry a weapon on premises. Employees are also prohibited from carrying a weapon while performing any task on RealPage's behalf.

Prohibited weapons under this policy include, but are not limited to, firearms, illegal knives, explosives and any other weapon restricted under local, state or federal regulation. If you have a question about whether an item is covered by this policy, please contact the Human Resources department. You will be held responsible for making sure beforehand that any potentially covered item you possess is not prohibited by this policy.

Failure to abide by all terms and conditions of this policy may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination. Furthermore, carrying a weapon on RealPage will be considered an act of criminal trespass, will be grounds for immediate removal from RealPage premises, and may result in prosecution.

This policy shall not be construed to create any duty or obligation on the part of the Company to take any actions beyond those required of an employer by existing law. If you have questions regarding this policy or become aware of anyone violating this policy, please report it to Human Resources immediately.

Inclement Weather

To accommodate the needs of our clients, RealPage will remain open for business as scheduled throughout the year. Non-remote employees who are expected to be in the office are asked to make every reasonable effort to be at work as scheduled every day.

Occasionally, environmental conditions, such as inclement weather, may interfere with an employee's ability to be at work as scheduled. Each employee must evaluate their individual circumstances to determine whether their commute can be made safely, considering such factors as the distance from the employee's home to the office, road conditions, advice of authorities, school closings, etc. If an employee determines that they are unable to come to work, they are to notify an available manager prior to the beginning of the scheduled work period. If RealPage closes one of its offices after the start of the workday due to inclement weather, nonexempt employees who are unable to continue their work remotely will be paid only for time worked, unless otherwise required by state or local laws.

RealPage has dedicated 972-820-4111 (or internally dial extension 4111) for inclement weather communication. If unusual circumstances require a change in our standard office hours, a recorded message at this number will communicate the information. RealPage has a dedicated mass notification system, RiskConnect, that is utilized to send out emails, SMS and voice messages in the event of inclement weather. If unusual circumstances require a change in our standard office hours, a message will be sent to employees via this system to their email and phone number list in UKG for further communication.

Security Badges

In order to ensure a secure workplace, all employees must display a RealPage security badge at all times while on Company property. If an employee does not have their badge, they must contact their manager or supervisor to gain access to the building and/or contact REWS.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY, PRODUCTS, SYSTEMS AND SECURITY

Information Security Policy Overview: The Basics

RealPage is in the business of trust. Our clients trust us to protect the confidentiality and security of their data. Our clients' consumers trust us to protect the privacy and security of their personal information. Therefore, every RealPage employee is responsible for understanding and following procedures that reduce risk to our Company, our clients and their consumers.

Each employee serves as the first line of defense in managing those risks by protecting RealPage's information systems, products and other assets. You are responsible for understanding information security principles, the operational risks associated with your role and managing those risks appropriately.

The requirements documented in this section describe three key principles that help maintain security of sensitive information and data. Employees are expected to comply with the key principles at all times.

These principles are as follows:

- Act in ways that protect sensitive Company data, client data and consumer information
- Use RealPage's assets for business purposes only
- Use RealPage's communication systems in an appropriate and safe manner

This overview should not be considered comprehensive. RealPage expects employees to use sound judgment and to act in ways that protect RealPage's information, assets and communication systems. If you have questions, you should work with your manager and the RealPage IT Security team to ensure that your actions comply with the RealPage Information Security Policy.

Failure to act in ways that protect RealPage's information, assets, and communication systems or failure to cooperate with inquiries or investigations may result in corrective action, including termination of your employment. Every employee is required to report anything that may violate the Information Security Policy or place the Company's information, assets and communication systems at risk. In the event of a suspected or potential security incident, you should err on the side of caution and report the situation to the Security Incident Response Team. Methods for reporting such situations are outlined within this section.

Appropriate use of RealPage systems, products and services

The use of RealPage's information technology systems, products and services is a privilege granted to each employee based on roles and responsibilities. These systems give employees the ability to deliver service and communicate with clients, business partners and other employees in a secure and reliable manner while minimizing risk and maintaining compliance with regulatory and legal standards.

To mitigate risk, employees are required to use electronic communication, system features, and content appropriately and in accordance with established requirements and business procedures. RealPage systems, products and services may be used for business purposes only; personal use is strictly prohibited.

The following are examples of prohibited activities:

- Using system access and RealPage login credentials for personal reasons, such as accessing a client's database to view your own (or someone else's) lease application, rent ledger, resident profile, or other data owned and controlled by a client
- Hacking or otherwise attempting to gain unauthorized access to systems, products or resources, including attempts to disrupt service
- Posting/storing proprietary content or sensitive data in unapproved or personal websites, blogs, chat rooms, mobile applications or other social media applications
- Downloading or forwarding chain letters, viruses, or attachments from unknown or suspicious third parties
- Downloading and/or installing pirated software or other electronic files on RealPage systems or hardware
- Transmitting, retrieving or storing any communications of a defamatory, discriminatory, harassing or pornographic nature

Under no circumstances are employees allowed to use RealPage information technology systems in a way that could violate the Company's policies or any federal, state, or local regulations.

Monitoring of Company systems and equipment

RealPage will monitor and may control access to and use of its equipment and information technology systems, including but not limited to: original and backup copies of email, instant messaging, text messaging, voicemail and Internet use. You should not expect privacy in connection with your use of any Company resources, equipment or property. Even if data is encrypted and you have created or have access to passwords to protect against unauthorized access, you should not consider activities or correspondence using that password to be private.

All telephone and email transmissions or conversations, or any internet access or usage, via the use of any electronic device or system may be subject to electronic monitoring at any and all times and by any lawful means. In addition, phone calls made or received on any business telephone may be monitored or recorded. Monitoring may be conducted remotely or locally using software, hardware or other means. Information obtained through monitoring may be shared with management, Human Resources and IT security. It will be treated confidentially and retained for a reasonable period to accomplish the purpose for which it was collected as determined by RealPage, and it is subject to any rights employees may have under applicable law.

If you have questions or concerns about the appropriate use of RealPage systems or equipment, contact your supervisor or IT Security.

Protecting RealPage information

Confidential information and intellectual property, including trade secrets, are extremely valuable to RealPage, clients and consumers. Treat them accordingly and do not jeopardize them through your business or personal use of electronic communications systems, including email, text messaging, Internet access, social media, telephone conversations, and/or voice mail. Disclosure of the Company's confidential information to anyone outside RealPage and use of the Company's intellectual property is strictly prohibited without authorization from the RealPage Legal Department. Ask your supervisor if you are unsure whether to disclose confidential information to specific individuals or how to safeguard the Company's proprietary rights.

This policy also prohibits use of the Company's IT resources and communications systems in any manner that would infringe or violate the proprietary rights of third parties. Electronic communications systems provide easy access to vast amounts of information, including material that is protected by copyright, trademark, patent, and/or trade secret law. You should not knowingly use or distribute for business purposes any such material downloaded from the Internet or received by email without the prior written permission of the RealPage Legal Department.

Information access and sharing - "need to know"

Every RealPage employee's access to Company resources and information is considered a privilege. An appropriate level of information access is granted to employees according to their business role and need.

Employees may receive proprietary information relating to RealPage and client operations in the course of their work and are obligated to protect such information from disclosure. Employees must disclose information only to authorized parties who have a business need to know. Company and consumer information may be disclosed only within RealPage or to nonaffiliated parties in accordance with applicable law, confidentiality agreements, and privacy policies. It is your responsibility to ensure that the request for information meets these requirements.

If you're not sure whether information should be shared with or disclosed to another party, ask your supervisor or IT Security.

Sensitive information (data) handling

"Sensitive information" (or data) refers to confidential, privileged or proprietary information that is not available to or readily accessible by the general public. If sensitive information is lost or used in any way other than intended, the result can be severe damage to the people or organization to which that information belongs.

Common examples of sensitive information include:

- Personally Identifiable Information (PII): Social Security numbers, DOB, driver's license numbers, financial account information, medical records
- Company trade secrets, documents, emails marked "privileged and confidential," corporate financial documents and account information

All sensitive RealPage data (Company data, client data and consumer personal information) must be handled appropriately and protected from unauthorized access or misuse. This requirement always exists, including during storage, transmission, usage and even disposal. Therefore, all RealPage employees must adhere to the following best practices:

- Do not access sensitive information unless there is a valid business purpose for doing so. Any access of sensitive information for personal reasons is strictly prohibited.
- Do not communicate or otherwise transfer sensitive information to others unless you know they are approved or authorized to receive it.
- Do not store unencrypted sensitive information on a laptop computer/desktop computer's hard drive, USB drive, CD, flash memory card, floppy drive or other storage media. Do not store unencrypted sensitive information on any smartphone, tablet or other mobile computing device.
- Do not transmit sensitive information via any wireless technology, email or the Internet unless the connection is secure, or the information is encrypted.
- Do not store sensitive information obtained from RealPage systems on third- party media or other systems (Dropbox, Amazon Cloud, Apple iCloud, etc.) unless doing so in accordance with business unit procedures or explicitly authorized by RealPage IT Security.
- Dispose of media (disks, tapes, hard drives, etc.) that contain confidential information in a manner that protects the confidentiality of the information.

Workstation security

Every RealPage employee must protect sensitive information by ensuring proper control of access into any business-related work area and ensuring vigilant housekeeping practices, such as shredding or other secure document disposal.

Username & passwords

Safeguard all types of personal authenticators to prevent unauthorized use by others by following these best practices:

- Authorization or access to certain systems and information within RealPage or external vendor systems is granted based upon confirmation of your username and password. Protect your passwords, just as you would protect other types of restricted information:
 - Do not disclose, display or share passwords with anyone, including your manager
 - Do not request an employee, client, or consumer's username or password to access accounts
 - Change your password immediately and notify IT Security if you suspect that it has been compromised

Securing your devices

Always keep your laptop, other mobile computing devices (smartphones/tablets), and portable digital storage media safe and secure by adhering to the following best practices:

- Never leave your computer unattended without first shutting it down or locking your screen (press CTRL+ALT+DELETE then ENTER).
- At the end of the day, if you do not take your laptop or other mobile devices home, store them in a locked drawer or file cabinet.
- When traveling, take extra precaution to protect your equipment and its information:
 - Power down the laptop completely by selecting Shut Down after pressing CTRL+ALT+DELETE or from the Start menu before you transport the laptop
 - Never check laptops as luggage; always keep your laptop with you
 - Whenever possible, lock your mobile devices and media in the hotel room safe
- Never leave your laptop in an unlocked car or in a car overnight.
- When attending offsite meetings, do not leave your laptop unattended.
- When working from home, do not let family members or anyone else use your work computer or any other mobile computing devices or portable digital storage media. Under no circumstances are unauthorized parties allowed to use RealPage devices.

Protecting RealPage hardware & software assets

RealPage computing hardware and software (“assets”) are Company property and provided for use to facilitate Company business. Assets issued to employees are an extension of the office and must be secured in accordance with RealPage policies and procedures. Employees are responsible for protecting assets from loss, theft and damage while they are in the employee’s possession. Under no circumstances are employees allowed to use RealPage assets in a way that could violate RealPage policies. RealPage reserves the right to monitor any Company assets to ensure compliance with these policies and to maintain legal and regulatory standards.

RealPage IT systems & software

All software installed or developed on RealPage IT systems, and any data collected, downloaded or created via these systems is the exclusive property of RealPage.

Employees may not copy or transmit RealPage data outside the Company without a predefined business need, and then only in an authorized manner. Upon termination of employment, no employee shall remove, copy, or destroy such software or data from Company systems.

RealPage-issued mobile devices

RealPage may issue employees Company-owned smartphones, mobile phones or tablets for the purpose of conducting RealPage business. Security software installed on mobile computing devices must not be disabled or removed under any circumstances. Even with security software in place, employees must immediately report a lost, stolen or confiscated mobile computing device to IT Security.

Reporting security incidents

Any RealPage employee who believes that an information security incident has occurred must report it immediately. This helps to contain the incident and assists with managing its impact. Under certain circumstances, RealPage may be required to notify clients, consumers and others if sensitive information is compromised.

Some examples of information security incidents include:

- Unauthorized or improper use, attempted use, or access to RealPage information technology systems and products
- Loss, theft or confiscation of a RealPage computer or mobile device
- Discovery of product or system vulnerabilities, malfunctions or other errors
- Misappropriation or unauthorized use of RealPage employee access credentials (badges) and authentication (usernames/passwords)

To report a security incident: contact the Security Incident Response Team at: SIRT@realpage.com or 972-820-4745

Email Usage

Created as a business tool to help employees serve customers, communicate with suppliers, streamline internal communications and reduce unnecessary paperwork, the email system is intended primarily for business purposes. Employees accessing the Company's email system are required to adhere to the following policies and procedures. Violation of the Company's email policy may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

1. All communications and information transmitted, received, or archived in the Company's computer system belong to the Company and are subject to audit at any time. The law gives Company management the right to access and disclose all employee email messages transmitted or received via the Company's computer system. Employees should have no expectation of privacy when using the Company email system. The Company may exercise its legal right to monitor employees' email activity. Be aware that management may access and monitor email at any time for any reason without notice.

2. The email system is reserved primarily for business use. Employee's nominal use of the Company's email system for personal reasons is allowed provided it does not affect productivity.
3. Privacy is difficult if not impossible to achieve in the electronic age. Confidential or personal information should never be sent via email without the understanding that it can be intercepted. This includes the transmission of customer financial information, Social Security numbers, employee health records, proprietary data and trade secrets, and/or other confidential material. When sending confidential material (or any messages), employees should use extreme caution to ensure that the intended recipient's email address is correct.
4. Exercise sound judgment and common sense when distributing email messages. Client-related messages should be carefully guarded and protected, like any other written materials. You must also abide by copyright laws, ethics rules and other applicable laws. Exercise caution when using the "Reply to All" feature of Outlook or sending blind carbon copies to ensure that you don't violate addressees' privacy by inadvertently sending carbon copies.
5. Email usage must conform to the Company's harassment and discrimination policies. Messages containing libelous, defamatory, obscene, menacing, threatening, offensive, harassing, or otherwise objectionable and/or inappropriate statements — and/or messages that disclose personal information without authorization — are prohibited. If you receive this type of prohibited, unsolicited message, do not forward it. Notify your manager or the Human Resources department about the message. Handle the message as instructed by management.
6. Email messages should be treated as formal business documents, written in accordance with the Company's guidelines. Style, spelling, grammar and punctuation should be appropriate and accurate, and the rules of etiquette must be observed. Auto forwarding of email to vendors, clients, or parties outside the Company is forbidden. The content and tone of the emails must reflect the official responsibilities of the author. Remember that it may be exposed to public scrutiny if it is demanded in a legal discovery process.
7. Employees are prohibited from sending Company-wide email messages to all employees unless doing so is part of their regular job duties. Only a designated member of the Information Technology organization and/or systems administrator may generate public mail distribution lists.
8. Employees should not waste the Company's computer resources or colleague's time. Send email messages and copies only to those with a legitimate need to read your message. Chain messages and executable graphics should be deleted, not forwarded, as they can overload the system.
9. Employees are responsible for knowing and adhering to the Company's email retention and deletion policies.

COMMUNICATIONS

RealPage Communications Policy

The way RealPage and its employees conduct communications across various public forums can have a profound impact on how the Company is portrayed by outside parties, influencing both our corporate reputation and the perception among our current and prospective clients, employees, investors, analysts, media and competitors. This policy details guidelines for RealPage employees in their use of social media, media, and corporate and public communications.

Confidential and proprietary information

RealPage employees and other Company representatives must maintain the confidentiality of information considered by RealPage to be confidential, including Company data, customer data, partner and/or supplier data, personal employee data, and any information not generally available to the public.

Disclosure of Company information

You must not comment or communicate any confidential RealPage information, such as RealPage's clients, investors, or past or future business performance, business plans, or prospects. This includes statements regarding:

- Confidential or financial information
- Product development
- Business strategy
- Trade secrets, including competitors
- Current legal procedures
- Personal information

The following policy and guidelines cover all forms of public communications, including but not limited to the following:

- Communications on behalf of RealPage
- Online, print and broadcast media inquiries
- Legal inquiries
- Social media, multimedia, networking, blogs and self-published content

All RealPage employees and Company representatives may not knowingly communicate information that is untrue or deceptive. RealPage will take all reasonable steps to assure the validity of information communicated via any channel, but it is the responsibility of the Company representative to ensure accuracy in the first instance.

Use of the Company name

Unless prior authorization in writing signed by an officer of the Company has been received or contacts with the press are an expected aspect of your job duties, no employee may use the Company name to give the impression that they are acting on behalf of the Company. The Company name includes any logos and/or designs that are commonly used by the Company.

I. Communication on behalf of RealPage

Only the Senior Vice President, Communications, the Director of Investor Relations and executive officers of the Company are authorized to make statements in any forum on behalf of the Company. No other employees may communicate on behalf of the Company without express permission from the Senior Vice President, Communications, the Director of Investor Relations or an executive officer of the Company.

II. Online, print, and broadcast media inquiries

All press inquiries, including online, print or broadcast media seeking official RealPage information or statements, must be routed through the Senior Vice President, Communications. This department is responsible for corporate fact checking, coordinating executive briefs or interviews, and handling direct inquiries. Do not engage in open dialogue or answer questions about any specific topic on behalf of the Company. Direct all such media inquiries to corporate.communications@realpage.com.

III. Responding to inquiries submitted via social media

From time to time, employees using social media for official business or personal purposes may receive inquiries or contact related to RealPage operations. Any employee receiving such contact should refrain from responding or engaging in open dialogue on behalf of RealPage and direct the contact to the RealPage Marketing Department at socialmedia@realpage.com for handling.

If you are unsure about any particular communication or posting, please contact RealPage Marketing at socialmedia@realpage.com for further clarification.

IV. Legal inquiries

If you receive a subpoena, correspondence or request for information from any federal, state, or local governmental agency that is directed to RealPage or to you in your capacity as a supervisor or manager of RealPage, you must immediately notify the RealPage Legal Department at legal@realpage.com and direct all such legal inquiries to the Legal Department.

Social and Digital Media Policies

Conduct on social media

At RealPage, we understand that social media can be a fun and rewarding way to share your life and opinions with family, friends, clients and fellow employees around the world. Digital and social media channels also allow us to promote RealPage products and services to a mass audience, while engaging individuals through conversation and knowledge exchange.

Participating in social media also has the potential to affect our Company reputation and expose RealPage to business and legal risks. To manage these risks effectively, all RealPage employees need to know, understand and put into practice the guidelines for acceptable use of social media. This policy applies to all RealPage employees and members of the Company's Board of Directors in their capacity as representatives of RealPage. This policy also applies to third-party agents and contractors who act on behalf of RealPage.

Using social media for personal use

We encourage you to use social media to gain and share information about RealPage. However, it is important to remember that as an employee, you are perceived by members of the public as a representative of RealPage when participating in personal and business communications. This applies even if you include a statement in your profile that your opinions are your own.

Digital and social media channels include all means of communicating or posting information or content of any sort (for business and personal use) on the Internet, including to your own or someone else's web log or blog, journal or diary, personal web site, video sharing site, wiki, social networking or affinity web site, web bulletin board, consumer review site, or a chat room, whether or not associated or affiliated with RealPage, as well as any other form of electronic communication.

You are solely responsible for what you post online. Before creating online content or posts, consider some of the risks and rewards that are involved. Keep in mind that any conduct that adversely affects your job performance or the performance of fellow associates, or that otherwise adversely affects members, customers, suppliers, people who work on behalf of RealPage or RealPage's legitimate business interests, may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Carefully read and follow these policies. Inappropriate postings that may include discriminatory remarks, harassment, and threats of violence or similar inappropriate or unlawful conduct will not be tolerated and may subject you to disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Do's:

1. Be fair and courteous to fellow employees, clients, vendors, independent contractors or any other person who works on behalf of RealPage.
2. Be honest and accurate when posting information or news, and if you make a mistake, correct it quickly.
3. Maintain the confidentiality of RealPage trade secrets, private or confidential information and financial disclosure laws. Trade secrets may include information regarding the development of systems, processes, products, know-how and technology.
4. Be cognizant of the content, your neighbors, and workspace (such as appearance of proprietary information) when shooting amateur video content at or during a RealPage office or affiliated property. Please use your best judgment in displaying this information out of context, and/or without prior approval from those in the video.
5. Express only your personal opinions. Never represent yourself as a spokesperson for RealPage.
6. Refrain from using digital or social media while on work time or on equipment provided by RealPage unless it is work related as authorized by your manager.

Don'ts:

1. Avoid using statements, photographs, video or audio that reasonably could be viewed as malicious, obscene, threatening or intimidating, that disparage customers, employees or suppliers, or that might constitute harassment or bullying.
2. Never post any information that you know to be false about RealPage fellow employees, clients, vendors, independent contractors or any other person affiliated with RealPage.
3. Do not post internal reports, policies, procedures or other internal business-related confidential communications. It is illegal to communicate or give a "tip" on inside information to others so that they may buy or sell stocks or securities.
4. Do not post any personal video content that includes the names of RealPage brands, partners or customers to video sharing sites (including but not limited to YouTube) without approval from the RealPage Marketing department. To inquire about approval, please contact socialmedia@realpage.com.
5. Do not use RealPage email addresses to register on social networks, blogs, video sites or other online tools utilized for personal use.

RealPage prohibits taking negative action against any employee for reporting a possible deviation from this policy or for cooperating in an investigation. Any employee who retaliates against another employee for reporting a possible deviation from this policy or for cooperating in an investigation will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Employee use of social media on behalf of RealPage

- Creation & approval: No official RealPage website, digital or social media channel, account, or platform can exist or be created without prior permission from the RealPage Marketing department. This restriction includes social media accounts created for product testing purposes. Please route such requests through RealPage's Marketing Department at socialmedia@realpage.com.
- Branding & logos: All official RealPage digital and social media accounts and platforms must adhere to the requirements of the RealPage Brand Center located at <https://www.realpage.com/brand/>.
- Company & product descriptions: All official RealPage digital and social media channels, websites, accounts, and platforms must have current Marketing-approved Company descriptions, product and services information, and imagery.
- Username & passwords: Employees responsible for managing official RealPage digital and social media channels, websites, accounts, and platforms must provide up-to-date log in, password and access information for each asset to RealPage's Marketing Department at socialmedia@realpage.com. All passwords must be changed every quarter (90 days).
- Content: All content posted to digital and social media channels, websites, accounts, and platforms must be completely accurate and not deceptive or misleading. Employees responsible for managing official RealPage digital and social media properties are prohibited from disclosing confidential or proprietary information concerning RealPage operations, including but not limited to: nonpublic financial and operations data, mergers and acquisition activity, and product development projects. Employees are likewise prohibited from utilizing or creating posts that include confidential or copyrighted information (music, videos, text, etc.) belonging to third parties.
- Removal of content: RealPage may elect, at any time, to remove content from official RealPage social and digital media channels, websites, accounts, and platforms to maintain compliance with applicable laws, regulations or legal requests. RealPage likewise reserves the right to remove or request removal of any posted employee or third-party content that is inappropriate for the topic discussed, uses inappropriate or offensive language, or violates the corporate privacy policy.

If you have questions, please contact socialmedia@realpage.com.

Conduct on Internal Communications Channels

The same policies in place for social media also apply to internal channels, including email messages, conversations on Microsoft Teams, posts on Viva Engage/Yammer or via another internal communication channel including, but not limited to Seismic, Slack, etc.

As with external channels, RealPage reserves the right to remove or request removal of any posted content that is inappropriate for the topic discussed, uses inappropriate or offensive language, or violates the corporate privacy policy.

If you have questions or concerns about a message or communications, please contact the Communications team at corporate.communications@realpage.com.

Solicitations, Distributions and Posting of Materials

RealPage prohibits the solicitation, distribution and posting of materials on or at Company premises by any employee or non-employee, except as outlined below. Company premises means property owned, leased, operated, managed or controlled by RealPage, including buildings, parking lots and other areas that RealPage has the right to use exclusively or in common with others. RealPage's property does not include public premises, such as public streets and public sidewalks.

Provisions:

- Employees may not distribute literature of any kind during work times, except in connection with a Company-sponsored event.
- Employees may only admit non-employees to Company premises with management approval or as part of a Company-sponsored program. These visits should not disrupt workflow. An employee must accompany the non-employee at all times.
- Employees may not solicit other employees during work times, except in connection with a Company-approved or sponsored event.
- Non-employees may not solicit employees or distribute literature of any kind on Company premises.

Violations of this policy should be reported to Human Resources.
