Program Overview:

Our RealPage leaders hold great importance in helping ensure that employees are guided and supported to deliver exceptional results. Effective leaders are able to coach, develop their team members, and share their thoughts and ideas on what works well and what needs improvement, all while managing day-to-day tasks.

The Learn to Lead program is designed with the RealPage Core Values, Purpose, and leadership competencies. It aims to develop participants with the skills and knowledge required to successfully lead teams, drive results, and foster a culture of continuous improvement.

The Learn to Lead program is crafted to empower and enable leaders to make a positive impact on RealPage's culture and success.

Objectives:

- Strengthen the ability to prioritize work effectively, model leadership behaviors, and foster an inclusive environment.
- Develop ownership and collaboration among team members through effective communication and inspire exceptional team performance.
- Apply critical thinking skills when implementing business decisions and changes and effectively meet customer needs.

Program Roadmap:

- The Learn to Lead program will run for approximately 11 hours over a span of 12 weeks.
- The program includes facilitator-led training, self-paced learning, discussions, and lab practices.
- The program will begin with a 15-20-minute self-assessment on My Pathway, a personalized digital development tool, to determine the skills they feel most and least confident about. The participants will receive an instant overview of their personality type and recommended courses to develop leadership capabilities.
- The participants, their managers, and direct reports will also complete a pre-and post-program skills assessment.
- Please see the Learn to Lead program framework below:
