QUESTION: WHAT HAPPENS IF WE DO NOT CHECK-IN WITH OUR TEAMS/DIRECT REPORTS?

WHY MID-YEAR MATTERS

Mid-year check-ins are owned by the manager and are a time to connect with your direct reports and understand their experience and guide/support their career. For these conversations, we want to focus on four areas:

Goals

Re-evaluate and Refine Trajectory

Performance

Provide Feedback and Course
Correction

Development

Identify Growth Opportunities and Support

Engagement

Foster Connection and Open Dialogue

MID-YEAR VS. PERFORMANCE REVIEW

What is the Difference Between a Mid-Year and an Annual Performance Review?

Mid-Year Check-ins

- ✓ In-the-moment coaching
- ✓ Calibrate and guide performance
- ✓ Ability to reset goals if necessary
- ✓ Structured and purposeful conversation
- ✓ Coaching focused on the next 6 months

Annual Performance Review

- ✓ Summarization of past performance
- ✓ Evaluates final performance with ratings/comments
- ✓ Assesses goal progress (or lack thereof)
- ✓ Formal conversation
- ✓ Coaching focused on long-term career plans (when done well!)

MAKING THE MOST OF THE CONVERSATION

To ensure a productive and impactful mid-year check-in, consider these key elements

Scheduling and Preparations

- 45 to 60-minute meeting
- 1:1 notes, projects lists and status updates
- Gather relevant data

Key Areas Identification

- Celebrate Successes, Achievements
- Identify opportunities for improvement (focus on behaviors and outcomes)

Evidence and Alignment

- Have evidence-based examples
- Note differences in employee and manager perspectives

Action Planning and Follow-up

- Collaboratively define action steps
- Follow-up for accountability and support

TOOLS: STAR/AR FRAMEWORK

Effective Feedback Framework

WHAT TO AVOID?

What to avoid for check-ins: Ineffective feedback

TOOLS: EMPLOYEE VOICE

Leveraging Employee Voice for Meaningful Check-ins

Pre-Check-in:

- Review driver scores, focus areas, trends, themes, and comments.

During Check-in:

- Use the data for context, DO NOT use it to dictate the conversation.
- You can use your data to:
 - Reinforce high scoring focus areas
 - Seek perspectives and support for low scoring focus areas
 - Explore their experiences through comment summaries.
- Always maintain confidentiality
 - Never share verbatim comments
 - Never ask if they are the ones that wrote specific comments

TOOLS: PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT PLANS

A personal development plan (PDP) is a targeted framework that focuses on an employee's skills, long-term or short-term career goals and aspirations with actionable steps for professional and personal growth. But why does it matter?

TOOLS: PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT PLANS

Personal Development Plans (PDPs) should be loaded into UKG leveraging our Personal Development Tool during the Mid-Year Check-In process.

WHAT'S NEXT?

NEXT STEPS: UPDATE GOALS AFTER CHECK-INS

This process ensures that performance goals remain accurate and aligned with any adjustments made during mid-year check-in conversations.

Key Actions:

- Input mid-year conversation details
 - Review and update goals. Make sure that you adjust goals and percentages.
 - Ask your team member to document key discussion points, feedback, and goal progress in the notes portion.
 - Use STAR format as necessary
 - Deadline for conversations: July 16

Reminder on Goals:

- Use SMART Goals
- New hires must have their goals in the system within their first 30 days
